ANN MARSTERS IN THE MOVIES

GARY COOPER ANN MARSTERS

When Ann Marsters was pictured above as she entered the set of "Souls at Sea" with the star of that Paramount production, Gary Cooper, she was chatting with him—but had time to observe the envy of the other extra girls, who cherish a nod from the big luminaries of filmland.

All Is Not Glamour To Workers in Films

Before you are taken, in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser, to the filming of "Waikiki Wedding," in which Ann Marsters had a role, Boston's noted girl reporter who turned film actress to get first-hand material for her series, "Ann Marsters in the Movies," takes time in this, the sixth article in the series, to describe a day in the life of an extra girl as she, working as an extra girl, observed it. The series will be continued daily in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 19—I suppose there comes a time in nearly every girl's life when she thinks (however vaguely) that she'd like to be in the movies. And she probably pictures it as a gay and glamorous life, a kaleidoscope of beauty and romance and excitement.

But is it really like that? No, of course it isn't.

So I shall tell you what a day in the life of an extra girl is like. And incidentally, once inside the studio, an extra girl's work is much the same as that of a star's—except that the stars have to work harder.

Now I have a slip of paper with my name written on it. It is a small, pink slip, but it is very powerful. At the sight of it, many doors will unlock and I may enter—with no questions asked. It is, in fact, the same sort of slip that you would be given if you were a Hollywood extra girl.

Well (I tell myself) this is

JAIL REFORM BLOCKED BY POLITICS

(This is the fifth of a series on conditions in the state's penal institutions, as seen from the inside. Massachusetts has long boasted of its fine institutions. The Boston State Hospital exposures have shaken that complacency; and here is the truth on the prisons at Charlestown, Bridgewater, Concord and Norfolk.)

By ALAN C. FRAZER

Boston Evening American Staff Writer

What price votes?

Congressmen, legislators, executive councillors and various executive officials in recent years have intervened to get hardened criminals transferred from State Prison to Norfolk Colony.

This—together with the limited facilities at Charlestown, making transfers of unworthy inmates necessary in many cases—has entirely disrupted the plan for a rehabilitative institution at Norfolk.

The funds supplied for this institution have not been used for the purpose intended, because the purpose has been thwarted by lack of foresight and politics.

The good work that Norfolk Col-

Wally Bride May 22 Says Style Expert

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—Frances Clyne, New York fashion expert, said today that ex-King Edward VIII, now the Duke of Windsor, will marry Mrs. Wallis Simpson in Vienna May 22 — ten days after the coronation of King George VI.

Miss Clyne said she learned of the wedding plans at a recent cocktail party at St. Moritz, Switzerland. The party, she said, was attended by Lord Brownlow, close associate of the duke.

Good News of Good Times

Pittsburgh, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. announced today an overflow of business from its other mills has caused it to reopen the Mercer plant at Farrell, Pa., which has been closed two years.

Approximately $100,000 is being spent reconditioning the plant, where 450 men will be given work within four weeks.

The weather man wins once more.

The refusal of Jack Frost to win a decision over Old Sol has resulted in another postponement of the Boston Evening American Silver Skates Derby.

Directors of the derby have decided not to risk outdoor weather again so will hold the ice classic in the Boston Garden, Sunday afternoon, March 7, at 2 p. m.

Bombs, Acid Fly In Strike Riot; Six Injured

Chicago, Feb. 19 (INS)—First attempt of deputy sheriffs to oust sit-down strikers under court order left six injured today after a two-hour pitched battle at the Fansteel Metallurgical plant in North Chicago.

With tear gas clouding the plant, and many of the men inside choking from fumes, a temporary truce restored a semblance of peace after hours of fighting.

But fears grew the attack would be renewed shortly as reinforcements brought the corps of deputies up to 300.

In addition new supplies of tear gas and bundles of baseball bats were distributed among the besiegers.

Reports from the 100 men inside the plant varied. One striker, who slipped out, said they were torn by dissension with one group wishing to surrender and others willing to fight to the bitter end.

Another striker, however, shouted out a window:

"WON'T GIVE UP"

"We will never come out and we will never surrender. We will none of us come out alive."

The strikers had been ordered out by a court injunction and the riot broke out today when an attempt was made to eject them.

The strikers turned an acid spray on the deputies, but it was ineffective as they were out of range.

Within the first few minutes of the siege, the deputies hurled more

WIFE IS HELD IN GAS TUBE DEATH PLOT

More things than were written on the Cambridge police blotter came out today as 42-year-old Mrs. Frances Simas, also noted as Semas, was arrested and charged with assault with intent to murder her husband, John.

Almost as the woman was facing the district court on this charge, an attorney was entering stipulations in Middlesex Superior Court in which the accused woman agreed "not to interfere or encumber her interest" in a Cambridge cafe, nor in a certain automobile.

And at the same time, district court records linked her name with that of one Carl Melbard, a lodger at the Simas' home in Broadway, Cambridge. The woman and Melbard had been charged with a statutory offense in that court last Wednesday.

HUSBAND GETS WRITS

Husband John, near-victim of asphyxiation by illuminating gas, had procured from superior court, it was disclosed, injunctions restraining his wife from disposing of assets of $10,000 in life-savings, which he alleged he had acquired.

The court also issued a temporary restraining order against one "Charles Melba, also known as Melbert," from interfering with the management of the cafe named

2 Men Killed in N. H. Auto Plunge

Merrimack, N. H., Feb. 19—Olive Robbins, 18, and his father-in-law Arthur Michaud, 67, both of 79 Taylor road, Manchester, were killed today, when the automobile in which they were riding from Nashua to Manchester failed to make a curve here. The car left the road and turned over several times in a field. No one witnessed the accident.

Michaud was proprietor of a garage in Manchester.

Crocuses In Bloom

Crocuses are in bloom in Boston gardens, the earliest blooming within the memory of veteran seed dealers and horticulturists. Ordinarily they bloom during early April; occasionally in late March. With the average temperature eight degrees higher than normal they have forced their way through the ground under the gentle warmth of the sun to set an all-time record.

Battles Man In Dark

A recent portrait of Miss Lucy Swenson, attractive 24-year-old nurse, who was found lying in Neponset Valley road today, victim of a brutal beating. After she was revived at the office of Dr. Alexander Young, the girl told police of a desperate battle she had with a man.

40 Flee in Back Bay Fire; Church in Peril

Flames burned through two floors of the three-story Guild hall attached to St. Cecelia's Church in Belvidere street, Back Bay, today, causing damage estimated at $700.

Forty persons in an apartment house directly across the street from the hall were forced out of their rooms by heavy smoke. For a time it was feared the fire would spread to the church.

The blaze, firemen said, apparently started in the first floor auditorium. It had burned up along the walls and into the second floor library by the time it was discovered, just before morning Lenten services.

Rev. Thomas F. Garrity, administrator of St. Cecelia's, removed the sacred vessels from the tabernacle.

2 Washed Overboard, Saved by Life Belts

Newburyport, Feb. 19—They donned cork life-preserver jackets to keep warm, but these same jackets saved the lives of two Salisbury fishermen today.

Raymond Kershaw and Leland Danielson, both of Ring's Island, were swept overboard when a huge wave collapsed their boat. And the cork belts kept them afloat.

Both were unconscious when they washed in toward the Salisbury Beach shore so that Fred Cochrane and Leo Pickard, both of Amesbury, were able to wade out and drag them to safety.

Lamp Burns Mother, Baby in Dorchester

A Dorchester mother and her five-months-old daughter were scalded today when a vapor lamp overturned in the child's nursery.

The victims were Mrs. Ethel Sullivan, 36, and baby Dorothy Sullivan, both of Dorchester avenue, Dorchester.

The mother ran to the nearby Fields Corner police station carrying the baby in her arms. Both were taken to City Hospital, where they were given first aid treatment and released.

GIRL ROUTS ATTACKER IN BATTLE

Victim of a brutal beating, Miss Lucy Swenson, attractive 24-year-old nurse, was found unconscious early today on the Neponset Valley road at the Hyde Park-Milton line.

A pedestrian, who came upon the nurse lying in the roadway, picked her up and carried her to the office of Dr. Alexander Young in Gordon street.

From there the attack was reported to police as soon as she had been revived. Officers in cruiser cars from Hyde Park station, police headquarters and the Metropolitan station responded to the call.

TELLS OF FURIOUS FIGHT

To the police, Miss Swenson told of a five-minute, desperate battle with a man who had bludgeoned her repeatedly with some weapon until she had collapsed.

She said she believed, however, that her continual screaming as she attempted to fight him off caused him to flee when finally she fell.

The nurse said she had attended a theater in Boston and was walking toward her home in Brush Hill road, Milton, when the assailant approached from behind and struck her over the head.

It was a glancing blow, however, and although she was shaken, she turned and gave battle.

Again and again the man aimed blows at her with some instrument he held in his hand. Some of the blows she warded off as she clawed at him, others landed.

SCREAMS ROUT ATTACKER

During the entire battle she believes she was screaming, she said, but finally her assailant's superior strength told, and she collapsed.

Dr. Young treated the young nurse for lacerations of scalp, forehead and face.

Then she was taken to her home at 1064 Brush Hill road, where she lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Swenson.

Her father is a chauffeur for a State street manufacturing company treasurer who is a Brush Hill road neighbor.

Couple to Try 38th Home—7th Since 'Donrovin'

Akron, N. Y., Feb. 19 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Jay Smith pulled up stakes today for the 37th time in their 37 years of married life and head for a new home at Warsaw, N. Y.

Both said it was their last move. But they've said that before.

Seven years ago they hung a sign, "Donrovin" over the door of their Wyoming County farmhouse. They have moved five times since.

Lone Bandit Gets $100 in Brookline

SEVENTH MARINE DIES IN U. S. S. WYOMING BLAST

NAVY PROBES 5TH DISASTER ON SHIPS WITHIN YEAR

San Pedro, Cal., Feb. 19 (AP)—The death toll of a gun explosion aboard the old U. S. S. Wyoming was raised to seven today when Sydney Ensley, marine private, died on the naval hospital ship Relief from his injuries.

First eyewitness descriptions of bodies shattered by the explosion were disclosed as a naval board was formed today to investigate the tragedy.

Ten others injured, some possibly fatally, when a 20-pound powder charge of a five-inch shell went off in the breech of a starboard gun on the demilitarized Wyoming during maneuvers.

"I saw one boy sort of drift past me, floating through the air, half his head shot off, and land on the deck," said a marine aboard.

"It was awful!"

The Wyoming was laying down a barrage to cover evacuation by a landing party on the beach of San Clemente Island when the explosion sent fragments of steel and iron through the bodies of the gun crew and against bulkheads.

CAPT. EDWARD J. TRUMBLE
Killed in Ship Blast

"The blast blew out parts of the bulkhead around the casemate, a small gun room projecting from the outer skin alongside the hull," said the eyewitness.

"It was a terrible accident," said Captain C. N. Hinkamp, commander of the Wyoming. "The dead are of the regular marine personnel and the fleet marine force brought out from Quantico, Va., for the battle problems here."

5 BLASTS IN YEAR

This was the second major tragedy to strike a United States warship in the San Clemente Island drill grounds in seven months and the fifth accidental explosion aboard a battleship of the Pacific battle force in the past year. Army, navy and marine forces took part in the landing exercises.

Admiral Arthur J. Hepburn, commander in chief of the fleet, ordered an inquiry for tomorrow morning aboard the U. S. S. New York.

The dead, all privates with one exception, were:

Capt. Edward J. Trumble, 1415 King street, Alexandria, Va.
Albert Enos, 58 Sixth street, Cambridge, Mass.
John Baner, Rural Route 7, Station 6, Box 153, Cincinnati, Ohio.
Joseph W. Bozynski, 182 Thirty-sixth street, Pittsburgh, Pa.
Richard Frye, 729 Homer street, Johnston, Pa.
Sydney Ensley, Atlantic City, N. J.
Clinton L. Walker, Boykin, N. C.

THE INJURED

The injured, all privates:

William K. Webster, Benedict court, Greenwich, Ct., right arm amputated at shoulder.

Richard P. Brooks, R. F. D. No. 5, Mt. Golead, O., burns on face and eyes.

William H. Lentz, Jr., 6623 Ridge boulevard, Brooklyn, N. Y., lacerated face.

Ernest M. Mamanus, Route No. 1, Monroe, N. C., cuts and bruises.

ON U. S. S. MARBLEHEAD

Seven months ago, two men were killed and nine injured aboard the U. S. S. Marblehead, when the breech block of a forward six-inch gun blew out. The worst disaster on the Pacific Coast occurred 13 year ago, near San Clemente Island, aboard the U. S. S. Mississippi. Almost two tons of TNT exploded in a gun turret, killing three officers and 45 enlisted men.

Completely isolated from the waterfront, the gray-hulled Wyoming rode at anchor behind the breakwater today. All shore leave for her crew and the 1000 marines aboard was cancelled last night.

Surgeons on the nearby hospital ship Relief toiled for hours, performing amputations, removing splinters of steel and iron from lacerated heads and bodies and setting broken bones. A Catholic chaplain, the Reverend F. W. Neehling, was summoned from the U. S. S. Colorado by the Relief's officers to administer last rites to some of the injured.

When the explosion silenced her batteries, the Wyoming was carrying Brigadier-General J. J. Meade, commanding the First Marine Brigade, and Rear-Admiral William H. Standley, retired, former chief of naval operations.

The tragedy was a ghastly climax to four days of mimic warfare by land, sea and air. The maneuvers were conceived as a test of American military skill in conducting and repelling landing operations.

3 Burn to Death In Chicago Fire

Chicago, Feb. 19 (INS)—Three persons, two adults and a baby were burned to death today when fire swept a four-story apartment building. Firemen rescued 20 people by stretching ladders to windows and later found the three bodies on the third floor.

Labor Law Backers Picket State House

Boston Evening American Photo

A committee was formed from among the large group favoring the amendment to call on President of the Senate Samuel H. Wragg. They left the picket groups on Beacon street, but were halted as they passed in a State House corridor by guards and policemen. They failed to see Wragg.

PASS the CHILD LABOR Amendment

After boos, catcalls and jeers filled Gardner Auditorium, backers of the Child Labor Amendment, in the most part quit the hearing scene and went to picketing the State House. Miss Alice L. Dodge was a picket.

POLICE WATCH FOR REDS AT CHILD LABOR MEETING

A heavy police guard was ordered to duty on the Common today at the mass meeting called by labor leaders in protest to yesterday's sudden and dramatic ending to the State House hearing on the child labor amendment.

Presence of several well known local Communist leaders in the picket lines that formed following adjournment of the hearing led police officials to take more than ordinary precautions.

Meanwhile, a call was issued by labor union officials to 30,000 garment, rubber and shoe workers to be present at the Parkman bandstand.

Feeling ran high today as proponents of the child labor law branded the action of presiding officer Senator John D. Mackay, in limiting arguments to two hours as a violation of "free speech."

3-HOUR MEETING

Action was already underway by a group of House Republicans to seek reopening of the hearing next Tuesday.

Representative Edmond Talbot, Jr., of Salem, House chairman of the legislative committee on constitutional law, announced that he will urge Senator Mackay to throw the hearing open to unlimited debate.

This move is said to have the support of President Samuel H. Wragg of the Senate and Speaker Horace T. Cahill of the House.

From early morning on, leaders of labor organizations, Socialists and socialite supporters of the amendment prepared for the three-hour protest meeting.

License for the use of the bandstand was granted by Mayor Mansfield to Secretary-Treasurer Robert J. Watt of the state branch of the American Federation of Labor.

Watt condemned the action of Senator Mackay as "Fascist" and a confession of weakness on the part of opponents to the child labor law.

Later, he announced that he had called the White House to advise the President that "free speech" was being interfered with in this state and requestd that an official representative be sent from Washington to attend the protest meeting.

The storm clouds that had hung over the meeting for two tumultuous days broke when Chairman Mackay decreed that debate would be limited to one hour for each side.

Aroused at the ruling, Kenneth I. Taylor, legislative agent for the State Federation of Labor, protested vehemently and was ordered to leave Gardner Auditorium.

Sympathizers of the bill followed suit amid unprecedented demonstrations. Picket lines were formed and marched in front of the State House until plans for the meeting today were announced.

Later, Watt issued a stinging statement of rebuke, saying:

"When the opposition to the child labor amendment applies gag rule, it is time for a showdown. In Boston, cradle of liberty, the Fascist-minded friends of big business have today refused the constitutional rights of orderly petition and free speech to a delegated representative of the Massachusetts State Federation of Labor."

SET TO REOPEN HEARING

In his Quincy law offices today, Mackay declared he stands ready to reopen the hearing "to anyone not already heard."

"I did not limit debate," declared the senator. "I did not express any intention of doing so.

"On the contrary, I stated at the time of adjournment that the hearings would be resumed at 10 o'clock this morning, if there was anyone who cared to be heard on either side. No one indicated he wished to be heard.

"I am willing to put the bill down for further hearing, to hear only those who have not already spoken."

Cambridge Youth Survived Illness To Die in Blast

How Private Albert Enos of Cambridge, one of the six Marines killed yesterday aboard the battleship Wyoming, recovered from pneumonia only to meet death in the gun turret, was told by his family in Cambridge.

His sister, Mrs. John Frazier of 311 Hurley street explained that a few days ago a letter from the youth had told of his anticipation of a visit to the East in the near future.

ALBERT ENOS

Only five weeks ago, she said, her brother's life had been despaired of when he was stricken with pneumonia. The tragedy aboard the Wyoming came a few days after he had returned to duty.

The body will be brought to Cambridge and funeral services will be held early next week with full military honors.

In addition to Mrs. Frazier, another sister, Mrs. Flora McCarthy, and a brother, Joseph Enos, both of Cambridge, survive.

Stalin's Sub Dies; Headed Industry

Moscow, Feb. 19 (AP)—The death of Gregory K. Orjonikidze, the Soviet Union's No. 2 strong man, struck a severe blow today to the industrial renaissance he fathered.

Second in power only to Joseph Stalin, Orjonikidze once was regarded as his political heir or at least the prospective head of a group that would control the Soviets' most important non-political post as commissar of heavy industries, was a member of the Politbureau, an all-important group of 10 men within the Communist party who rule Russia, and was chairman of the supreme council of national economy.

Jordan Waters For Royal Baptism

Naples, Italy, Feb. 19 (INS)—Water from the river Jordan and a shroud which covered the image of Jesus in the grotto at Bethlehem last Christmas arrived at the Royal Palace here today to be used in the formal baptism of the Infant Prince of Naples, first son of the Crown Prince and Princess.

The prince, who is second in line to the Italian throne, was baptized shortly after his birth with holy water blessed personally by Pope Pius, but holy oil and Jordan water will be used at the semi-public official ceremony.

The baby will be wrapped in the shroud.

WINANT, SECURITY BOARD CHIEF, QUITS

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—President Roosevelt revamped the Social Security Board today by withdrawing the nomination of John G. Winant, designating A. J. Altmeyer chairman and appointing Murray W. Latimer to fill the vacancy created by Winant's retirement.

It was the second time that Winant, former Republican governor of New Hampshire, who has served as chairman since its creation, has left the security board. His nomination to continue as chairman had been pending in the Senate several weeks.

(Winant resigned during the 1936 campaign to reply to critics of the Social Security Act.)

Latimer, a New York man, has been serving as chairman of the Railway Retirement Board. He was appointed for the term expiring August 13, 1941.

Altmeyer, a former assistant secretary of labor, will not have to be confirmed by the Senate.

In announcing Winant's retirement, the President expressed the hope the former New Hampshire governor would return to government service soon. Winant already has returned to his home in Concord, N. H.

Asked if Winant would return to the Security Board, the President told a press conference he could not comment.

The third board member is Vincent M. Miles.

In an exchange of letters between the President and Winant made public at the White House, Mr. Roosevelt addressed Winant as "Dear Gill" and said he had deferred action on Winant's January 9 letter of resignation "in order that I might have more opportunity to study the future needs arising under the Social Security Act."

Peggy 'Tells All'

Fiddler Cooled, She Says

Fiddler's Smile Won Her Heart, She Says

New York, Feb. 19 (INS) — Pegg Garcia, herself under fire in her breach of promise suit, took another shot at Dave Rubinoff today by claiming that he wooed her by showing her pictures of other girls and boasting:

"These are some of the women I have had."

Peggy, under cross-examination in Supreme Court, said this didn't shock her because she just didn't understand what Dave was talking about.

Anyway, she explained, Dave was awfully nice when he proposed to her and had "a big, beautiful smile spread all over his face."

The former hatcheck girl who asks $500,000 from the radio violinist, charging breach of promise, was faced today with another man, the fourth so far, as Abraham J. Halprin, defense counsel, tried to prove Rubinoff's charge that Peggy wasn't so innocent when he met her.

Only Two Names

During cross-examination Peggy admitted she had said yesterday there were three names on her mail box.

"There are only two," she explained today. "I just made a slip. Didn't you ever make a slip?"

Discussing the first time she went to Rubinoff's apartment, she said with a pained air:

"I was invited for lunch, but I didn't see any."

Q—Did you have intoxicating drinks?

A—I suppose they were intoxicating, but I had only one, so I didn't feel anything.

Questioned about Rubinoff's alleged proposal of marriage, Peggy offered:

"When he proposed he had a big beautiful smile spread all over his face. Everyone knows what a big, beautiful smile Dave can put on when he wants to."

Q—Did he make advances to you when you were having chicken with him in Tuly's kitchen?

A—Wel, while we were eating chicken he had his arm around me.

Q—When you were in his apartment the first time did you doubt his morals?

"Didn't Understand"

A—Well, I noticed that he was getting a little out of control and needed to be put in his place.

Q—Did you put him in his place?

A—Sure I did.

Q—Did you think he had honorable intentions?

A—Well, during the advances I thought his intentions strictly dishonorable, but not after he apologized.

Q—Did you believe him when he said that he could have any girl he wanted?

A—I didn't know what he meant.

Q—How long had you been working then in night clubs, ballrooms and dance halls?

A—Four months.

Q—And you didn't know what he meant?

A—No.

Rubinoff dragged in another man—the fourth so far—in an effort to prove today his charge that Peggy Garcia was not an innocent girl when he met her.

Back on the stand for cross-examination, Peggy was asked by Abraham J. Halprin, defense counsel:

"Do you know Joseph John Van Dyke?"

"No," said Peggy.

So up bobbed a heavy-set gentleman with eye glasses and Peggy said yes, she did know him.

Q—Did you ever go to Virginia or New Jersey with him?

A—No.

Q—Did he come to your house almost every day?

A—No.

"Never Took Money"

Q—Do you remember being wooed by Van Dyke in an apartment in Astoria?

A—No.

Q—Ever take money from him?

A—Never, never.

Halprin also questioned her again regarding one Armand Rolando. She denied that Rolando ever called on her at her hotel room.

Asked to comment upon Peggy Garcia's accusations, Rubinoff replied before trial resumed today:

"At the proper time, I will. And that will be on the witness stand, when I'm under oath to tell the truth and nothing but the truth."

Not so reticent, however, was the violinist's attorney, Abraham Halprin.

"When I get through shooting holes in her testimony," he declared, "she won't have a claim."

It was disclosed that she was married in New York in 1930—three years after the alleged affair with Rubinoff—but she denied that she was previously married in Virginia.

A marriage license, bearing her name and issued in Virginia in 1925 was produced, but she declared it did not refer to her.

She said that her husband whose name she did not disclose, had now left her, after giving her a "sock in the jaw" when he found about her alleged relations with Rubinoff.

She said her husband reproved her a trifle harshly when he learned of her affair with the violin man. A little matter of a black eye and a cracked skull.

But he apologized for it later.

Solemn-faced and ill at ease, Rubinoff's three brothers were in court.

Dever to Depart On Health Cruise

Pope Tries Out His New Crutches

Vatican City, Feb. 19 (AP)—Pope Pius XI supported his ailing legs with crutches today as he gingerly tested his ability to walk.

Attendants assisted the Pontiff in walking about the papal apartments on the new crutches which he hopes will extend his radius of activity.

They were provided after Pius insisted on walking, Vatican sources said, to prevent him from imposing too great a strain on his feeble legs.

2 Held for Thefts From Police Auto

Two Norwood men were held for the grand jury by Judge Clifford Sanborn in Dedham court today on charges of having stolen parts from an Attleboro police car.

Henry E. Sopp of Everett street, and Charles A. Haese of Water street, are charged with having sawed the handcuffs off a prisoner chained to the steering wheel of the auto, then ran away with him and stripped the machine of parts.

The third man, Joseph Betram of Attleboro, was sentenced to two years in the House of Correction. He had been arrested originally for drunkenness.

DAVE'S 'Other Girl' PEEVED

BLASTS PEGGY, RUBINOFF

New York, Feb. 19 (INS)—Ex-hat checking Peggy Garcia has tossed a string of names, some prominent theatrically, into a potpourri of evidence by which she hopes to collect $500,000 from violin-playing David Rubinoff for alleged breach of promise.

That she met Rubinoff with so-and-so here and there has been the burden of her testimony.

Personages of theater, screen and night clubs, as was—until very recently—Frances Stutz, 21-year-old musical lovely, dote on having their names well-publicized—for obvious business reasons.

But, pointed out tall, blonde Miss Stutz today, the court record will show that her name alone of all those mentioned has been the target of "unfavorable" innuendo.

Swap Compliments

"I understand that Miss Garcia has said something about not knowing girls like me," she said coldly.

"I really do not want to say anything further about anything. But it is frightfully annoying. To keep the record straight, if what I have heard is true, I do not know girls like Miss Garcia."

With that "tit-for-tat" Frances begged to be excused so that she could return for the nonce to the unruffled life of a temporarily retired lady Thespian.

Frances—called "Pouchie" by the man with the violin, she disclosed blandly—was his "only, true, real, one-and-only girl-friend" for more than four years.

"Dave doesn't deserve any consideration in a way. Then again the Garcia girl doesn't deserve my sympathy, either. In other words, I am cheering for neither and just want to be left out."

If any more cracks are made about her, she may drop her philosophical calm and dispassionate attitude, and "do something," she said.

Avoided Subpoena

Peggy isn't the only one who has a lawyer, but Frances stressed that she wasn't the suing kind.

"Some one on Dave's side" approached her, she revealed, asking for help on the case, but she turned "some one" down cold, saying, in effect:

"Please don't subpoena me. I could be as helpful to the other as to Dave's side, so leave me out."

It sort of sounds funny to her, the claim that Peggy makes as to being with Dave so much.

"I can't understand it," she sighed. "I was, after all, his one-and-only during that time!"

Travel note: Miss Frances Stutz is leaving soon for Europe or Florida, maybe, to get away from it all.

HAPPY HOME HER GOAL, SAYS MARY ASTOR

Hollywood, Feb. 19 (INS)—Mary Astor slept late today on the strangest honeymoon of her experience, separated by thousands of miles from her bridegroom, Manuel Martinez Del Campo, former Little Theater actor, who is in Mexico.

Exhausted by the strain of 36 sleepless hours during which she flew with Del Campo to Yuma, Ariz., and was married by a judge, the thrice-wed film actress denied herself to all callers and refused to answer the telephone at her Toluca Lake mansion.

Del Campo, who flew to the Mexican capital from Mexicali, following the ceremony, is not expected home for at least two weeks, perhaps longer. He is attending to the affairs of his father, Manuel Martinez Del Campo, Sr., whose unexpected death led to the midnight elopement.

TERRIFIC PHONE BILL.

Indications were that telephone bills of the newlyweds would be terrific, as it costs $8.20, including tax, for a station-to-station call, and $10.20 for a person-to-person conversation of 3 minutes between Hollywood and Mexico City.

"I have always believed in a home and a happy married life," said Miss Astor before retiring. "I've always wanted that most. Now I have everything I wanted.

"Since my last divorce I have felt that I must marry again and take up a normal life for myself, as well as for my child, Marylyn, and Manuel is the man. Marylyn and he have had three months to get acquainted, and they love each other. I am sure that we will be very happy."

The elopement resulted from a spur-of-the-moment decision Wednesday night as Del Campo prepared to fly to the funeral of his father, member of a prominent family in the Mexican capital, Miss Astor revealed.

MET 11 WEEKS AGO

Miss Astor said that Ruth Chatterton, noted actress, introduced Del Campo to her last December 1 and while not exactly a case of "love at first sight" it was very nearly that.

"We found we had much in common," she continued, "an interest in pictures, the same type of books and people and we saw much of each other during the 11 weeks since we met."

Youth Bound Over For 6 Housebreaks

New York, Feb. 19 (INS)—Over a secret route, $120,000,000 in gold was being shipped by train today from the United States assay office here to the government depository at Fort Knox, Ky. A similar amount was shipped from New York on Jan. 15.

The gold was packed in 480 boxes, and was conveyed to the Pennsylvania station in 36 mail trucks, guarded by soldiers, motorcycle police, detectives, Secret Service agents and postoffice inspectors.

18 WAR PLANES SHOT DOWN AT MADRID

By THOMAS A. LOAYZA
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Madrid, Feb. 19—A bloody five-hour battle occured today at La Maranosa, on the Madrid front, developing into one of the fiercest aerial engagements of the civil war as 18 Rebel and Loyalist planes were shot down.

The rebels lost six pursuit planes and one Junker tri-motored bomber, according to a government communique, while Rebel dispatches asserted 11 Loyalista craft were shot down. The Rebels also announced five Loyalists planes were grounded on the Aragon front.

The battle began on land. A government communique stated:

"Insurgents on the Jarama front, replying to a government offensive, launched a vigorous counter-attack, and five hours of fighting the insurgent onslaught weakened and the loyalists maintained their positions.

AIR FIGHT OVER MADRID

"The government forces carried out a particularly brilliant operation along the Marata de Tajuna sector, where they stormed fortified positions held by German troops.

"Rebel aircraft bombed a neutral zone of the capital, and there developed an air battle over Madrid and suburbs. The insurgents lost six pursuit planes and one tri-motored junker bomber. One government plane disappeared."

The rebel statements on the battle said 11 Loyalist craft were downed. This version said the government troops delivered "a weak attack on the Madrid front near La Maranosa, but were easily beaten off."

REBEL OFFENSIVE

The rebel army of the north burst into a mighty offensive against Catalonia while 20,000 insurgent troops, according to Loyalist reports, were rushed up from the south in a desperate effort to break the deadlock on the Jarama front just southeast of Madrid.

Red Barcelona admitted the fresh rebel push on the Zaragoza-Huesca front in an official communique, saying:

"The insurgents are bringing strong pressure on the Aragon front, particularly on the southern flank in the region of Montalban, in the Province of Teruel.

"Farther south, the insurgents were firmly repulsed, and the Republicans are holding their lines despite a heavy offensive by airplanes, tanks, and cavalry."

Portugal Set to Join Barricade of Spain

By the Associated Press

Portugal today was declared ready to join Europe's neutrality barricade of the Spanish civil war, completing the list of 27 nations trying to stifle the conflict through non-intervention.

The general neutrality scheme, including a ban on foreign volunteers and a patrol system to guard against arms movements in the war zone, is to become effective tomorrow at midnight.

Meanwhile France launched investigation of reports insurgent artillery had been trained on her Pyrenees border with the assistance of German engineers.

Official French comment was withheld, but picked tri-color troops are were on the way to the border to enforce the ban on volunteers.

Czechoslovakia issued decrees making recruiting of volunteers for Spain, or enlistment, subject to imprisonment.

Hats off—Your country's flag! Of course it thrills you. You stand at attention when the colors swing by. You take your hat off or salute. But these regular army men of Headquarters Company, Ninth Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Banks, have a National Defense Week message for you. HITLER TO BAR NAZI VOLUNTEERS IN SPAIN

By PIERRE J. HUSS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1937, by International News Service)

Berlin, Feb. 19—Chancellor Adolf Hitler has decided to forbid German to volunteer for fighting in Spain, International News Service learned today.

This sensational step was decided upon yesterday, and is expected to be made effective as of midnight tonight.

The ban on Reich volunteers is contained in a special decree. Text of the new law was expected to appear in the official Gazette tomorrow.

The measure, regarded as highly important because of the previous extent of Germany's operations in behalf of the Spanish rebels, fulfills Germany's obligations under the new non-intervention agreement reached this week in London.

The decree puts an end to all German travel in Spain except by special permission, and it makes violations o the order punishable by prison terms. The decree even prohibits the transit across Germany of foreigners bound for Spain.

German port and frontier guards and officials are being instructed to examine closely the passports of any persons suspected of intending to participate in the Spanish conflict.

Russia Pledges 'Humane' Sinkings

London, Feb. 19 (AP)—Russia notified Great Britain today she is adhering to the London protocol for humanizing submarine warfare, already signed by six powers.

Britain, the United States, France, Germany, Italy and Japan previously had agreed to the protocol, under which submarines are obliged to place crew, passengers and papers of merchant ships in a place of safety before sinking the vessel.

Guard Six-Gun Mystery Plane

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—A mysterious Vultee monoplane, mounted with six machine guns and believed consigned to a foreign government, was under police guard today at Floyd Bennett Field.

The ship was flown into the field last night by a pilot who signed in only as "Williams," and said he brought the plane from Glendale, Cal., where it was manufactured. The ship is unlicensed, and bears only an identification number.

Police guarded the craft to prevent dismantling. Officials at the field said a Federal investigation was under way.

Bail Raised on 2 Held for Attack

Bail was raised from $200 each to $1000 each today in the cases of William Connelly, 31, and Francis H. Scherer, 33, both of Westwood, charged with having beaten Patrolman Edward O'Toole of that town.

The patrolman himself was still unable to appear, Judge Clifford Sanborn of Dedham court was told when the cases were called. O'Toole is to be X-rayed for a possible fractured skull, Police Chief George McGilly said.

For the second time, the cases were continued until next Thursday.

DEFENSE WEEK SHOWS NEEDS OF NATION

With England leading the major world powers in an armament race that will cost billions of dollars within the next five years, National Defense Week now being observed throughout the United States becomes significant.

It has been often said and repeated that the best defense is power of offense.

Our country is sadly lacking in organized military strength, ranking a poor seventh among all the great powers.

NEW STRENGTH

It's true that our navy has been built, and is being built to a new defensive strength. Our air force is far below our normal needs and our sea coast defenses are lacking in modern weapons.

National Defense Week is dedicated to the purpose of bringing to the attention of an otherwise unknowing public just what our national needs for defense require.

Military strategists point out that our army, navy and air force are totally inadequate to proper or prompt defense should we be attacked without warning by any of the major powers.

With our thousands of miles of sea coasts on the Atlantic and Pacific and our borders to the north and south, tremendous manpower, battleships, ambulatory equipment and airplanes would be needed.

PARADE, SHAM BATTLE

Leaders in national, state and civic governments all over the country have battled for an increase in our national defenses.

Up to and including Washington's Birthday, National Defense Week will be properly observed in the 28 army posts in the First Corps Area of New England.

On Washington's Birthday at Fort Devens a parade has been announced and a sham battle between a Red and Blue army will be staged for the benefit of spectators.

The latest weapons of modern war will be employed during the "battle," which will range over a five-mile area.

WAR DEBT PACT SEEN IN YEAR

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Senator Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, told the Senate today:

"There is a strong likelihood that in the next year something substantial may be accomplished looking toward a final settlement of the war debts."

Robinson spoke after Senator Lewis (D) Illinois, proposed in a resolution that no reciprocal trade be made with any nation which repudiates or "refuses to pay" or adjust its debt to the United States.

He said undischarged and unadjusted debts exceed $12,000,000,000, and "with interest and premiums, approach $20,000,000,000."

Interrupting Lewis, Robinson said his forecast was based on a turn in sentiment about the debts in debtor countries.

"There is a growing public opinion in some debtor countries," he said, "which recognizes the unavoidable, absolute necessity for declining to permit themselves to be permanently committed to a policy of repudiation."

POLITICS RUINS NORFOLK!

Hardened Men Transferred There

any might have done in the state's resistance to crime has been nullified.

Here again is an institution where Grade A men, as at Concord Reformatory, are mingled with lifetime professional criminals.

The institution at Concord, as has been shown, is a maximum security prison. Boys are sent there along with inmates of State prison type.

BEST MIXED WITH WORST

Norfolk was built for Grade A men, who might be corrected. Some of the worst types of prisoners are sent there, along with the others.

Commissioner of Correction Arthur T. Lyman is resisting political interference, but transfers of unfit men from Charlestown to Norfolk still are made, because the Charlestown prison will not hold enough.

Transfers of unfit men are made from Concord also to Norfolk.

Even men who have violated their paroles, and who had previously been given a chance at Norfolk and failed to make good, have been sent there.

Thus, adding Norfolk to Concord and Charlestown, this state has no modern prison system at all.

It has a galaxy of institutions each housing all types of prisoners.

It seems to me the people, who supply the money for a prison, a reformatory and a rehabilitation colony, are being given the "run-around."

Each institution has a group of politicians who hover over it, like fairy godfathers, controlling its destiny with little regard for what the statutes say, but with plenty of concern about their own political futures.

If a man wants a parole, his friends see certain lawyers who are in collusion with certain political figures. He may not get it, but I for one am willing to gamble on his chances. One way or another, the skids can be greased to get him out of the "spot" he is in.

The same thing goes for transfers to Norfolk. Some politicians have found to their amazement that their activities are now being resisted. But their methods are devious and success is not out of the question.

It is an old story, as old as Troy, as old as Mycenae. If a man is in trouble there is a politician eager to help him. The people who have no influence are the people who have nothing to say.

As for Norfolk, I found it a far more secure prison than the "big house" at Charlestown.

EFFECTIVE CHECK PLAN

Superintendent Maurice Winslow, trying to steer a course dictated to him not by the law but by the kind of inmates who are sent to him, has seen to this.

He is no soft-hearted penologist. He is an engineer with a keen insight into practical facts. His grasp of the prisoners' psychology would amaze you, I think.

He appears to be trying to wring all the good possible out of the original plan for the colony, insofar as this plan can be carried out with the type of men sent him.

But he is taking no chances with the hardened criminals, now with the results of their influence on the others.

He has had no escape over the wall in three years.

I saw inmates walking around in slacks, after their day's work or schooling was over and supper had been finished.

They Do Their Best

MAURICE WINSLOW
Superintendent Norwalk Prison Colony

ARTHUR T. LYMAN
Commissioner of Correction

I saw them drifting in and out of their dormitories, which are collegiate in exterior design and interior arrangement.

But that doesn't mean they can escape.

They are, in large degree, living under an honor system. But they are constantly checked to see how they are adhering to the rules. There are many times more rules at Norfolk than at Charlestown.

Each dormitory is divided into sections. Each section is divided into rooms. Each man has a room to himself. They have commons rooms in which to congregate, and they have shower bath facilities at the end of each corridor.

To the casual visitor—except for the walls, which are well guarded, as I shall presently describe—there appears to be few restrictions. But, as I have said, there are many rules. It is easy to get into trouble at Norfolk.

There is so much routine, in fact, due to the lower levels of men that are sent there, that the time for rehabilitation of offenders into worthwhile citizens is very limited.

Superintendent Winslow has built a new punishment block. It is a small cement building, without windows, and with a dozen cells, in two rows. In the center, hanging from the ceiling, is a large microphone. It will pick up a whisper.

The existence of this microphone is no secret. Winslow knows the prisoners would soon learn of it, if it were hidden.

He also knows something else about prisoners. He knows that to challenge them too strongly to try to escape would cause trouble.

In order to escape over the high cement walls, a prisoner must first surmount, or cut through, a steel wire fence. Then he has to get over the outer wall, with its parapet of barbed wire, charged with electricity.

And with guards in the wall turrets armed with machine guns. Incidentally, the machine guns were not his idea. He knows the prisoners are aware these guns do not hold to a dead level. The old carbines were more effectual.

ADDED WIRING PLAN

Now, if the prisoners try to cut the steel wire fence, secretly, he will put in another interior fence, and a row of barbed-wire entanglements between the wall and the present fence.

If escape should be attempted through the administration building, which is the main gate, a huge drum filled with tear gas would arrest progress. The gates are electrically controlled from above.

If an outbreak should be tried during a mass gathering at a motion picture show, tear gas is ready to halt it.

Supt. Winslow would prefer to bring all the inmates together even for eating, instead of having them eat as at present in separate cafeterias in the dormitories. He would be ready with tear gas.

MAXIMUM SECURITY

Except for the farm building outside the walls, occupied by carefully selected prisoners, Norfolk Colony is a "maximum security" institution.

It is well to have it such, even if its original purpose were being carried out.

But from the point of view of the public of Massachusetts paying hundreds of millions a year for crime, it is largely a waste of funds.

Elliott E. McDowell, in charge of the industries building, has an exceptional understanding of the problems confronting him. Matthew P. Maney, assistant to the Commissioner of Correction for the purpose of supervising from the point of view of organized labor, keeps a constant check on activities.

John J. Murphy, business agent for the Correction Department, makes innumerable visits to this, as well as to the other institutions.

What impressed me most of all among the Norfolk industries was the production of clothing.

TENDENCY TO ENLARGE

Can you imagine the joy in the heart of a small boy at an orphanage at receiving a suit made according to fashion and different in pattern than the suits of his comrades? A suit like those worn by boys with parents to provide for them.

1000 Prisoners Jam State Colony

If this sort of industry is not worth while, what is?

But the tendency at Norfolk, under the present system of prisons in this state, is away from such things. The tendency is to enlarge Norfolk's population, simply because of the large acreage of the site of this institution. The workable size is probably around 500. It is now nearer 1000.

The tendency is to make it a prison. No reformatory in Massachusetts. No rehabilitation colony. No maximum security "state prison." No decent housing and treatment of the criminally insane.

Warden Francis J. W. Lanagan is doing exceptionally well at Charlestown. The place is brighter because of much paint, and much cleaner, in spite of ancient fittings, than when I visited it seven years ago.

Superintendent Michael H. Dee, at Concord, is a good overlord of the maximum security prison he has. I don't know how well he would do with a real reformatory. But he knows the intended purpose of his institution is being thwarted.

Superintendent James E. Warren at Bridgewater has the worst plant to run but he has improved conditions beyond what anybody but a very efficient administrator could improve them.

Superintendent Winslow at Norfolk is as unlike a prison warden in appearance as you could imagine, and as fully aware of the problems confronting him as you could wish. He has an excellent assistant in Deputy John J. O'Brien.

LYMAN HUMANITARIAN

Commissioner Lyman is a humanitarian, strictly aboveboard, seldom discouraged by the immensity of the tasks lying before him.

Massachusetts as a state, however, is falling behind the times.

It is up to the legislature to revise the state's prison system, to bring into being the system the law intended, the system the people, for the most part, think exists.

The fictions of the present must give way to reality.

Is $2,500,000 a capital expenditure, to be spread over the lifetime of the new buildings needed—too much to spend?

I think State Prison at Charlestown should be abandoned and the inmates transferred to Concord; the correctible boys at Concord housed in a new institution, and Norfolk left to its work of rehabilitation, without interference by physical necessities or politics.

And the criminally insane at Bridgewater should be housed in a mental hospital by themselves, so that the defective boys and girls there can be classified, and the higher types treated effectually for re-emergence some time in the future into life.

THE END

BOTH SIDES GIRD FOR FIGHT OVER SUPREME COURT

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, Feb. 19—An unusual situation wherein both sides appear willing to play a waiting game developed today, two weeks after President Roosevelt startled Congress and the country by his proposal to enlarge the Supreme Court and to purge it of justices over 70.

The opposition has crystallized during these two weeks, but not to the point where opponents of the President's program are willing to risk a vote.

As for Mr. Roosevelt, he is abstaining from any appearance of hurry, seemingly confident that when the uneasy legislators begin to hear from the grass-roots of their states and districts he will get his program through a reluctant Congress. Meanwhile he is continuing to confer with an increasingly large number of senators every other day or so.

URGES FULL DEBATE

During the past ten days Mr. Roosevelt has talked personally with nearly a third of the Senate personnel, most of them classified as doubtful where his judicial reform is concerned. In these conferences, the President has not insisted that the program go through without the crossing of a "t" or dotting an "i."

On the contrary, he has urged his senatorial visitors to take their time, examine the whole subject closely, debate it thoroughly, and then act. Also he has told them that while this plan lies close to his heart he is not irrevocably wedded to it, and that if any of them have a better solution he is willing to consider it. He has made some converts.

The opposition has been traveling a somewhat more difficult road. The initial, outspoken opposition came first from those elements which opposed the New Deal from the outset, and which opposed Mr. Roosevelt in the last campaign. It is true, of course, that many who supported Mr. Roosevelt last November are opposing him on this issue, but in the main the core of the opposition remains the same. Bar associations and organizations of business men have taken the lead.

FOES LACK DRAMA

The opposition's difficulty is in dramatizing its cause. To the mythical man in the street, to the laborer and the clerk, the Supreme Court is something abstract, remote from his daily routine and his life. It is not in politics—theoretically, at any rate—and it is perhaps true, as some cynics maintain, that only a small percentage of "the people" understand and appreciate the significance and importance of the court in the American system.

On the other hand, Mr. Roosevelt finds it relatively easy to dramatize his attack on the court. He has drawn the picture, not once but repeatedly, of nine elderly gentlemen, six of them over 70, standing in the way of the social and economic improvement of the masses—this after he has three times submitted his candidacy to those same masses and three times been overwhelmingly endorsed.

Slips Flood Congress in Court Fight

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Members of Congress are receiving thousands of printed slips, bearing in large type "Hands off the Supreme Court!"

The slips, which are yellow, green and pink, add this message:

"Dear Sir:

"Believing that the proposal to revise and weaken the United States Supreme Court would prepare the way for dictatorship in our country, I earnestly urge you to use your influence against the measure."

Lindys Leave Persia for India

Jask, Iran, Feb. 19 (INS)—Reeling off 650 miles in four hours, 20 minutes, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh rounded the "corner" of Persia today, stopped briefly here, and were off for a 515-mile hop to Karachi, India.

Their flight from Bushire Island, in the Gulf of Persia, to this peninsula on the Gulf of Oman, was "uneventful," Lindbergh said.

They planned to make Karachi if weather permitted; otherwise they will stop at Gwadur, Baluchistan, for the night.

than 20 tear bombs through the windows. One deputy was burned about the leg when a bomb exploded prematurely.

SHOTS FIRED

As the battle raged several shots were fired, but in the confusion and commotion it was impossible to ascertain who fired them.

The deputies, under the direction of Sheriff Lawrence A. Doolittle of Lake County, smashed at the doors of the plant with huge battering rams, seeking to oust 100 strikers.

When the strikers refused to evacuate Judge Dady issued a writ of attachment naming 91 men, ordering Sheriff Doolittle to bring the sitdowners into court to show cause why they should not be held in contempt.

The workmen barricaded themselves within the plant Wednesday afternoon, after sending women employes and shop foremen home.

WANT RECOGNITION

Sole demand of the sit-downers, members of Lodge 89 of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a CIO affiliate, is union recognition.

When the evacuation order was read to the sit-downers yesterday they replied by displaying a sign reading:

"Collective bargaining or bust."

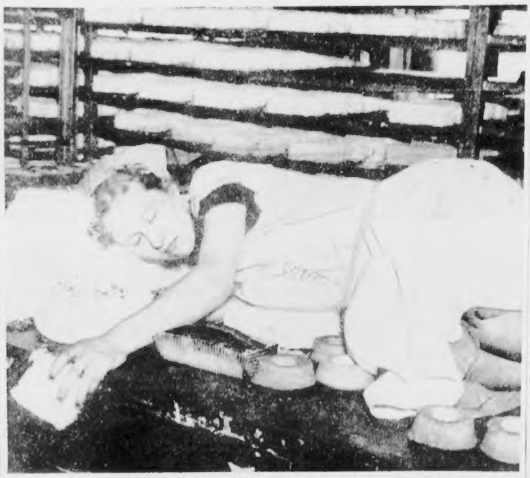
This defiance coupled with delivery of two truck-loads of food to the plant led officials to believe they intended to sit tight. Sheriff Doolittle prepared for a forceful evacuation, recruiting deputies from outlying farm districts.

The deputies wore white arm bands to distinguish them from the workers.

Police cars focused spotlights on the $1,000,000 plant as the deputies converged on the company property.

The siege began just as State Labor Mediator Patrick Callan arrived on the scene to attempt to arrange a peace conference.

Striking 'Mid the Cakes and Loaves



Exhausted sit-down girl striker in a Detroit bakery takes her snooze amid the cakes, pies and bread. There are eight sit-down strikes on in Detroit, involving 1250 persons, many of them women and girls.

St. Louis Strikers Back at Auto Jobs

St. Louis, Feb. 19 (AP)—Striking union workers of General Motors Chevrolet and Fisher body plants here returned to their jobs today, their brief "sit-down" strike ended by an agreement of the union and company officials.

Settlement of the strike was announced by Delmond Garst, executive secretary of the St. Louis local of the United Automobile Workers of America, after a conference with plant managers.

The accord was reached within two and a half hours after approximately 800 union workers dropped their tools.

Garst said the terms provided for the return to work of all union workers, no discrimination against union men, and permission for union members to wear union buttons.

"It was also agreed, Garst said, "to post signs saying that anyone who started fights—either union or non-union—will be fired."

'Sit-Down' Strikes Grow; 2000 Women in Ranks

Detroit, Feb. 19 (INS)—With nearly 2000 militant women workers now in the ranks of sit-down strikers, the epidemic of strikes here grew in number today with seven in progress.

New strikes cropped up as quickly as old ones were settled. Altogether a dozen strikes, most of them involving women, have been called in the past 48 hours. Five were quickly settled.

Sit-downs by the women created many problems for their families, husbands, children and police, who hitherto had thought sit-downing was a man's job.

Most of the strikes were of a spontaneous nature, not called by unions. However, organizers for John L. Lewis' CIO moved quickly to the scenes. Auto workers paraded and established picket lines.

Extra police were called when 250 union workers from an automobile plant paraded in front of L. A. Young Spring & Wire Company, where 200 women and 500 men were sitting down.

The demonstrators good-naturedly booed police and held mild flirtations with the striking girls who crowded factory windows to cheer them. A truce came soon afterward, however, with the company agreeing to open wage increase negotiations Monday.

Strikes still in progress were:

Fort Street Welfare Station—22 auto workers, including 13 women; Ferro Stamping Company—600 workers, including 100 women; Bernard Schwartz Cigar Factory—300 women; Webster Eisenlohr Cigar Factory—500 women; Mazer-Cressman Cigar Factory—400 women; Farm Crest Bakery—500 workers, including 200 girls; and Daisy Air Rifle Manufacturing Company (Plymouth)—Men workers variously estimated at from 12 to 50.

Mrs. Phoebe Hearst Honored by P. T. A. In Atlanta

Special to Boston Evening American

Atlanta, Feb. 19—Tribute to Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst and to Mrs. Alice McClellan Birney, cofounders of the Parent-Teachers Association, was paid at Founders Day ceremonies here yesterday.

Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory University, in the principal address of the day, declared that "it is the duty and the obligation of American mothers to carry on the principles that motivated the founders in their establishment of the P.T.A." He added:

"In facing moral issues, and in learning to weigh spiritual values, the child gets its standards from the home and the school."

Hera A. Wells, superintendent of county schools, said:

"The P.T.A., as conceived by its founders, has enabled parents to understand their children and to aid them in the solution of the moral problems that confront them."

Two pink dogwood trees were planted in honor of Mrs. Hearst and Mrs. Birney.

Five parent-teacher groups took part in the ceremonies.

EX-G. M. UNION OFFICER TELLS OF THREATS

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—James H. Mangold, former officer in a General Motors "company union," testified at a Senate inquiry today he was "thrown out of the manager's office" when he tried to present a complaint from workers he represented.

He told the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee there never had been "real collective bargaining" in the Flint, Mich., Chevrolet plant under the company union plan.

During the recent sit-down strike, he testified, company officials threatened to fire employes who refused to sign a petition declaring they were satisfied with wages and working conditions.

Plant Superintendent Sprague, Mangold continued, circulated the petition himself, in violation of General Motors regulations.

The witness asserted that the "works council" or company union was "controlled and dominated by one man" and that the "rank and file workers had very little contact with their representatives."

"We could complain about getting more windows open or some sort of safety hazard," he explained, "but that was the only kind of collective bargaining the management knew."

He was "thrown out" of the plant management office when he presented a complaint against the "speed up" in production, Mangold said.

Court Protest Awaits Hurley

Adopted on strict party lines, a memorial stating the opposition of the Massachusetts legislature to President Roosevelt's Supreme Court reform plan was waiting for Governor Hurley's signature today.

While passage of the bill was predicted in advance, Democratic members of the Senate insisted that the matter be debated on its merits.

Dazzled by Queens

Royalty Gracious To U. S. Couple

By CHARLES A. SMITH

Copyright, 1937, by International News Service

London, Feb. 19—Still dazzled by his experience, Frederick E. Fuller, of the Flatbush, Brooklyn, Fullers, today told International News Service how he and Mrs. Fuller hob-nobbed with King George, Queen Elizabeth, Queen Mother Mary, and others of the royal family amid the knives and scissors of the cutlery exhibit at the British industries fair.

Before Fuller, who is in the cutlery business in New York, left for his first trip to Europe, he thought he "might drop in and have a 'spot of tea' with the King." How his joke virtually came true he tells himself.

"Meeting the entire royal family at the British Industries Fair was certainly a thrill. The Mrs. and I haven't recovered from it yet. It was one of those sensations that come once in a lifetime.

Duchess Beauty

"A beautiful woman came up and smiled ever so sweetly. Oh! she was beautiful! I didn't know who she was at first, then I learned she was Marina, the Duchess of Kent.

"She got me! Boy, was she beautiful!—And asweet—awfully sweet!

"Marina asked me if I didn't think a knife on a nearby table with a red, white and blue handle was attractive. I picked it up and handed it to her. She said she wondered what price it was and I told her I didn't know, but would find out.

"She replied, 'Oh, please don't bother; it doesn't matter,' and smiled ever so sweetly.

"The Princess Royal spoke to us, too.

"It certainly was a thrill. I am just an ordinary little American business man. We never expected anything like that, and it's our first trip over, too.

"That royal family certainly works hard. They showed so much interest in everything.

"Queen Elizabeth is awfully sweet, too, with baby blue eyes.

"Well, we certainly have got a story to tell when we get home.

Gracious Royalty

"The Mrs. was standing in the cutlery section of the fair and I was in the act of buying some stainless steel carving knives when I first heard a big commotion.

"Turning round, I saw the royal family at a nearby stand! The Mrs. and I stood looking at them, almost breathless. Then I saw Queen Mary look at us and then speak to an attendant.

"Next, to our astonishment, Queen Mary walked over to Mrs. Fuller, smiled, and shook hands. "'How do you do?' she said. 'I am informed that you are American buyers. I am very glad to meet you here.' The queen then turned to me and shook hands and said, 'How do you do.'

"My poor Mrs. she was speechless. Al she could do was smile.

"Queen Mary then asked me how business conditions in America were. I told her we were getting along pretty well now.

"Meanwhile Queen Elizabeth followed Queen Mary in greeting the Mrs. and asked us both what we thought of the cutlery display. I said, 'I thought it was a fine display.'

"The Duke of Kent then stepped up and he also asked about conditions. When I repeated that we were getting along pretty well in America, he said: 'I am very pleased to hear it.'"

Teddy Roosevelt's Daughter Speeder

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Feb. 19 (UP)—Mrs. Ethel Roosevelt Derby, daughter of the late Theodore Roosevelt and a cousin of Franklin D. Roosevelt, was haled into traffic court, charged with speeding.

Mrs. Derby, whose husband is a prominent North Shore physician, pleaded guilty. Justice of the Peace Flanagan suspended sentence.

Trade Treaty Extension O.K.'d

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Senate finance committee reported without amendment today a resolution to extend the reciprocal trade act for three years. The present law expires June 12.

STRIKE THREAT TO SHOE FIRMS SEEN AVERTED

Thomas F. Curley, chairman of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration, emerging from a conference with shoe manufacturers at the State House today and announced he thought a threatened strike involving 25,000 workers in Massachusetts would be averted.

Curly reported "some progress" but declined to amplify his statement.

The conference of manufacturers and employes was called after the United Shoe and Leather Workers' Association had demandde a 15 per cent increase in pay.

Representatives of employers and employes were summoned to the State House for a conference, the arbitration board meeting the employers first.

Unless the increase is granted, William H. Mahan, general organizer for the union, said a meeting to vote on calling a strike would be held tomorrow night.

'Be Cured or Die' Campaign Speeded

Shanghai, Feb. 19 (AP)—Seventy residents of the so-called "model city" of Nantung, 75 miles northwest of Shanghai, were convicted today of habitual use of narcotics and sentenced to be shot in the government's "be cured or die" campaign.

Extending the anti-narcotic drive to Nantung after first executions of dealers at Peiping several weeks ago, Chinese police arrested 2000 others suspected of selling or using habit forming narcotics.

Jails were crowded to capacity as the stream of prisoners were dragged from narcotic dens. When the jail population exhausted the available cells, authorities ordered the city's temples turned over for temporary detention centers.

'Lost' Schooner Arrives in N. Y.

While Massachusetts and Connecticut Coast Guard vessels started a search at the request of an alarmed wife of one of the men aboard, the three-masted schooner Donald II was reported arriving safely in New York Harbor today.

The vessel left Cape Cod Canal shortly before 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and had not been reported until New York Coast Guard officials notified stations here of the arrival.

Unfavorable weather was believed to have caused the delay. On board were members of the second Byrd expedition, including William A. Robertson of Ipswich, whose wife requested the search; Fred Dustin of Vermont and Lieutenant-Commander Isaac Schlossbach.

Halifax Digs Out After Blizzard

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 19 (Canadian Press)—Eastern Nova Scotia emerged today from the worst blizzard of the winter with three persons dead and two vessels crippled.

Raging wind and driving snow which swept the pilothouse of the schooner E. F. Zwicker to sea with two of her crew inside, abated sufficiently to enable residents of Devil's Island, off Halifax Harbor, to reach the mainland for much-needed supplies.

Non-Civil Service Jobs Face Cutting

The sharpened axe of Governor Hurley was poised over non-civil service employes of the state today following his request to Civil Service Commissioner Thomas H. Green for a complete list of all such employes.

The governor announced that he directed the commissioner to oust non-civil service employes wherever possible without injury to the department.

CLEAR-AGAIN

PARENTS OF GIRL, 14, SPLIT ON BRIDAL PLAN

Brookfield, Feb. 19—Fourteen-year-old Mary Elizabeth O'Day, eighth grade junior high student, faced the difficult problem today of securing her father's consent to her plan of becoming a bride.

The young girl has already filed marriage intentions with Town Clerk Clifford E. Gadaire to wed Raymond E. Hack, 20-year-old mill weaver, of Wales.

Even though her mother has agreed to the marriage, somewhat reluctantly because of her daughter's age, James O'Day, the father, whose consent is also necessary, went on record with an emphatic "no."

While the young girl was in seclusion today at her home, her mother discussed her daughter's intentions.

The mother told reporters that the girl might elope in face of a family opposition. She termed an elopement as not the "proper type of marriage.

Meanwhile, the father, an employe of the McLaurin-Jones paper mill here, refused to abide by his wife's idea of the marriage and has decided not to sign the necessary consent papers.

Two weeks ago Mary left her classroom and even turned in her books, probably unaware than she would be forced, under the law, to return to school if her marriage does not materialize because of her age.

600 on Strike

Woonsocket, R. I., Feb. 19—Refusal of the company to raise wages of an individual cleaner, who asked 48 cents an hour instead of 44 cents, was blamed today for a strike which closed the American Wringer plant here, throwing more than 600 employes out of work.

EVOLUTION LAW REPEAL ASKED

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 19 (AP)—An unsuccessful effort to make teaching of Communism or free love a penitentiary offense in Arkansas was followed today by a proposal to repeal the State's anti-evolution law.

Representatives Adrian Coleman and John E. Coates offered a bill to remove from the statutes an act prohibiting "the teaching in any educational institution supported in whole or in part from public funds that man descended or ascended from a lower order of animals."

WIFE, FOE OF CONGDON, SEEKS 'OFFICE TRUCE'

Salisbury, Feb. 19—Mrs. Harold F. Congdon, running against her estranged husband for election to the town's board of selectmen, said today she hadn't "any axe out" for her opponent.

She said she guessed if she and her separated spouse were both elected, they would be able to serve together with more harmony than they enjoyed when they were living together.

"I haven't blood in my eye nor an axe out for anybody," Mrs. Cogdon told interviewers.

"I am running for the job of selectman because I need the money. The salary is $400 a year.

"There are seven of us in the field, with three vacancies to be filled.

"If my husband and I are both elected, I think we can work together on the board without fighting. I'm making no promises about what I will do, but there's no government, national or local, that isn't better for an occasional change."

Both Mrs. Congdon and her husband are seeking American Legion suport for their candidacies.

She's a prominent member of the Legion Auxiliary, to which her husband's war service won her admission.

He is present chairman of the Salisbury Board of Selectmen and is also chief of the town's police department.

Mrs. Congdon and her husband were political opponents for the first time, two years ago. They both ran for election to the Board of Public Welfare and both were defeated.

Harvard Men May Stop Radio Static

Entire elimination of radio static in the near future was believed possible today following an important electrical power discovery by Professor Chester L. Dawes and Dr. Reuben Reiter of the Harvard graduate school of electrical engineering.

Revealing that they have developed an instrument to detect imperfections in the insulation used for very high voltage by measuring electrical power loss, Drs. Dawes and Reiter believe they have founded the first step in the elimination of aerial noises.

Recent tests have proved that a deposit forming on the rims of porcelain and glass insulators used on high-tension power lines give off the static which causes radio interference.

To overcome this fault the two Harvard scientists are experimenting with an improved insulator surface which will resist this condition.

The finding is believed to have opened a new field of research in this type of electrical insulation because it has revealed that the principal cause of "leakage," or short-circuit, comes from humid conditions which, until now, was an unsuspected cause.

Humid conditions, according to Professor Dawes, shorten the life of the insulator by causing extra-heavy deposits to form on the rim.

To combat this condition he has built a [illegible] where he will conduct tests with different types of moisture-resisting earthware.

Static, in Professor Dawes' opinion, as well as power line loss, is caused when the electricity, in attempting to circle the base of the insulator, is attracted to the deposit and, jumping from one spot to the other, lengthens the journey to the line and interferes with clear reception.

Professor Chester Dawes of the Harvard Graduate School of Engineering demonstrates the high voltage air "bridge," the discovery of which, it is expected, will entirely eliminate radio static in the near future.

SEEK TO KEEP PWA GOING

Washington, Feb. 19 (INS)—The administration requested Congress today to enact legislation continuing the Public Works Administration for two years until June 30, 1939.

With the approval of President Roosevelt, Assistant PWA Administrator Horatio B. Hackett sent a request to this effect to Speaker Bankhead.

"The President has indicated to Administrator Ickes his willingness to have continued for an additional period of two years the Federal Administration of Public Works," Hackett wrote.

The proposed bill, which was referred to the House Appropriation's Committee, continues all provisions of the present law except for the date when projects must be substantially completed.

The measure carries no specific amount of funds, but it is estimated that the PWA has from $150,000,000 to $175,000,000 of unallocated funds left from a $300,000,000 revolving fund provided last year.

Strong advocates of the PWA in Congress are expected to make an effort to increase the fund.

Chug-Chug

Geneseo, Ill., Feb. 19 (AP)—Albert E. Miller has taken out his twenty-second license on his 1916 touring car.

The antiquated model, he said, is still hitting on all cylinders. It may be an ugly duckling in comparison with the streamline 1937 varieties, but Miller is satisfied.

PAIR, SNOWBOUND 8 WEEKS, RESCUED

SALMON, POPCORN SAVED LIVES

Kanab, Utah, Feb. 19 (AP)—Carl Cox, rescued with his wife, an expectant mother, after being marooned eight weeks by snow in a small cabin, said today:

"If anyone ever tries to feed me salmon again, I'll shoot 'em."

That and popcorn were all the eatables left when a tractor pushed through to their snow-bound ranch at VT Park, 18 miles south of Jacobs Lake, Ariz.

Cox, former national park ranger, and his wife arrived here early today. Mrs. Cox was exhausted from the long trip and nervous from the tension of the tedious wait for rescue.

"All we had left to eat when the tractor arrived was some salmon and popcorn," Cox said. "Our supplies had been dwindling away for weeks, but men passing on snowshoes left us a little food and we were able to get along. But I don't want to see any more salmon."

Never before has there been such a snow in the Arizona strip, north of the Grand Canyon. The fall since Christmas Eve totaled 14 feet, reaching to the eaves of Cox's home.

"It was a record snow," Cox related. "Although the total fall was about 14 feet, it leveled off to six or seven feet. It would snow every two or three days, filling up the paths I tried to keep open around the ranch.

"The worst part about being marooned out in that country is the sense of insecurity it gives you. The fear of not being able to get out is pretty bad."

The rancher grinned when asked what he did to pass the time.

"I spent most of my time shoveling snow from the paths around the house, melting snow for water and getting fire wood," he explained. "Mrs. Cox had to stay right in the house practically all of the time because there was so much snow.

"We took short walks almost every day when its wasn't snowing too hard. I only had one pair of snowshoes, so I made a pair for my wife."

Atty. Tierney Fined In Driving Case

Springfield, Feb. 19—A fine of $75 was paid by Attorney Paul F. Tierney, of State street, Westfield, former State civil service commissioner and one time chairman of the State Tax Appeals Board, after his plea of nolo to a charge of drunken driving was accepted by Judge William J. Granfield.

Bills Defeated

Bills calling for abolition of Massachusetts' death penalty went down to defeat when they were reported "leave to withdraw" by the legislative committee on the judiciary.

Summer-Tan on Winter Hike

The press agent said that Miss Ruth Albree, of Boston, was in Miami Beach, Florida, to escape the wintry blasts of Boston. While Ruth may be envied, New England folks may wonder where these wintry blasts are. However, Miss Albree is on a winter time vacation in the southern city. Wouldn't you like to be on that beach?

Connelton, Ind., Feb. 19 (AP)—Cannelton children are taking whiskey bottles to school, but there's no cause for worry.

The bottles contain only water.

Since the Ohio's unprecedented flood the pupils have had to take boiled drinking water with them. Whiskey bottles proved popular containers.

ANN MARSTERS IN THE MOVIES

Through Filmland's Portals - - - Extra Girl Finds Thrills Illusive

[illegible]

GETS JOB—Here Ann is shown leaving the Paramount casting office, after she has been given a role in a picture. Ann [illegible] place where many [illegible] stars have had their [illegible] beginnings and end.

NAME IS UP—One of the first thrills in a day in the life of an extra girl: Ann finds her name on the call [illegible] that all [illegible] board which tells [illegible] at what time and where. Ann then goes on to the wardrobe room.

COSTUMED—Ann didn't like the first costume offered here so the wardrobe mistress found this dainty, light blue creation and made it fit the reporter actress for her role in "Souls at Sea." Note the dressmaker form at the left. There's one for each star, with the star's name on it. Guess whose that is? Give up? It's Carole Lombard's.

Half a Day Gone--And Still Not a Single Camera Shot!

[illegible] and Claudette Colbert [illegible] even such names [illegible]

Ah, There, Gary!

[illegible] who knew [illegible]

The most surprising thing [illegible] day as an extra girl was that not a single movie [illegible] Hollywood would have anything to do with me [illegible] I was all dressed [illegible] "Souls at Sea" costume [illegible] I had no idea [illegible]

Half Day Gone

[illegible]

And what the afternoon did bring, Miss Marsters describes in the seventh article in the series, in TOMORROW'S Boston Evening American. Then, on Sunday, she will take the readers with her to the beginning of the filming of "Waikiki Wedding," which stars Bing Crosby and in which the Boston girl reporter was given a role as a hula-hula girl.

REST—The first half of the first day over, comes a bit of a rest and some food. Ann and the other extras, as well as the stars, go to the studio commissary for a bit of luncheon.

'Bank of England' Next Film by Fox

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Feb. 19—Listen, my children, and you shall hear of a carefully guarded plan at 20th Century-Fox to produce a new historical drama called "Bank of England," picturing the development of this world famous institution.

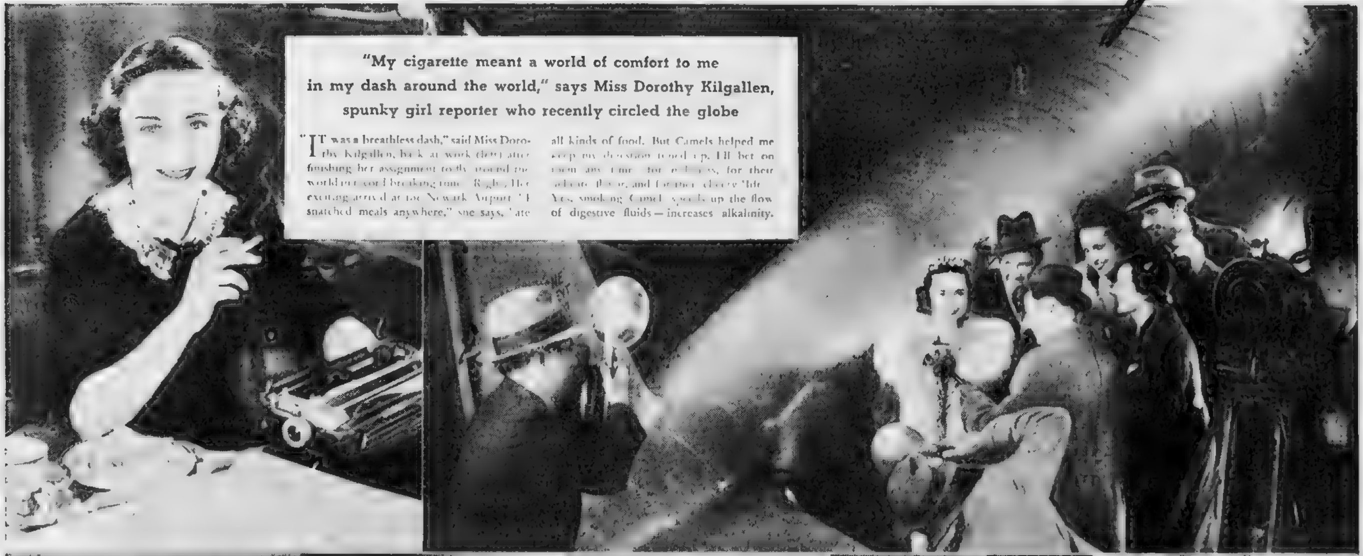
"Around the World in 24½ days!"



"My cigarette meant a world of comfort to me in my dash around the world," says Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, spunky girl reporter who recently circled the globe

"IT was a breathless dash," said Miss Dorothy Kilgallen, back at work (left) after finishing her assignment to fly around the world in record-breaking time. Right, her exciting arrival at the Newark Airport. "I snatched meals anywhere," she says, "ate all kinds of food. But Camels helped me keep my digestion tuned up. I'll bet on them any time for mildness, for their delicate flavor, and for their cheery 'lift.' Yes, smoking Camels speeds up the flow of digestive fluids — increases alkalinity.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS

● TUNE IN EVERY TUESDAY NIGHT

WHAT A PHYSICAL TRAINER THINKS on the subject of smoking: "Sure I smoke," says Bertel Arnberg. "Camels have honest-to-goodness mildness. I smoke Camels with my meals and after. Camels help my digestion — I can feel a sense of ease and well-being after enjoying Camels with my meal. [illegible]

"THE SMART NEW TOUCH is to have Camels on the table from hors d'oeuvres till dessert," says Dorothy Malone, food editor. "My own personal experience has been that smoking Camels with my meals and afterwards contributes a world of extra pleasure to eating. Camels certainly help build up a sense of well-being. Camels have such mildness [illegible]. One never tires of their taste."

INFORMATION WANTED QUICK! Ray Jones puts in long hours answering rapid-fire questions in Grand Central Terminal, New York City. "A tough, nerve-racking job," he says. "I spotted my cigarette years ago when it first came out — Camel. And I've been a steady Camel smoker ever since. [illegible]

ABOUT TO "SHOOT" AN OIL-WELL! "They call what I do 'the world's most dangerous business.' It makes me mighty careful about my nerves and digestion," says B. C. Simpson. "Sure I get to feeling tense — anyone would, working around T.N.T. all the time. But I don't let it interfere with my eating. I smoke Camels. They have what I love — they help digestion, put a heap more joy into eating."

The fashion news [illegible] Paris [illegible] Evening dresses [illegible] rainbow [illegible] one dress. [illegible] stripes of [illegible] and round [illegible] green [illegible]

There are [illegible] stripes going up and down. The [illegible] got into our evening clothes [illegible] There are prints in Roman stripes like the sashes we wore in our Sunday dresses when we were [illegible] In fact, Paris is the Roman sash come to life.

"But Paris has more to give than color and romance [illegible] For instance [illegible] an evening dress [illegible] real evening dress [illegible]

"It has a starched petticoat. [illegible] While this is the [illegible] short [illegible] skirt, there is no doubt but that evening skirts are getting shorter [illegible] shorter [illegible] the [illegible] barely touch the floor. There are no trains.

"I am sure you would like to know what kind of a suit you are going to buy. It will be the suit that will make you look very young [illegible] because of its simplicity.

"Molyneux is [illegible] at this sort of thing. A typical suit might be with a [illegible] like a sweater, with round neck and short sleeves with a pleated skirt or a full circular skirt. In any case your skirt will be shorter than it was last year with a [illegible] four buttons in navy blue. Navy blue is [illegible]

[illegible] navy blue there is [illegible] greige, which is a color between gray and beige. This is often combined with a [illegible] hat and a [illegible] to match. There are checks and plaids in every mood and pose in suits in coats in plaid jackets with [illegible] skirts.

There are [illegible] with a [illegible] at the back and [illegible] and there are three-quarter [illegible] straight in front and full behind."

Farewell to Futility: Napoleon Meloch Leaves His Forbidden Fortune

AMONG THOSE NOTES OF MELANCHOLY MEMORY which the St. Petersburg, Fla., Daily carries under a [illegible] header, is a brief obituary, almost a foot [illegible] stating that Napoleon St. Francis Meloch's [illegible] is dead [illegible] [illegible] shack which [illegible]

[illegible] Meloch [illegible] citizen [illegible] stand on his ramshackle porch and [illegible] crowds as [illegible] possess a claim [illegible] real estate which, [illegible] courts ruled it his, [illegible] let him collect. And [illegible] any known relatives, [illegible] strip of sand on which he [illegible] to the city which denied his lawful [illegible]

HE FISHED FROM HIS FRONT PORCH

MELOCH CAME TO ST. PETERSBURG WHEN it was [illegible] a fishing colony with a few scattered [illegible] on the [illegible] of the beach. Forty-five years ago he came down from [illegible] a seasoned adventurer in search of [illegible] at the water's edge.

The [illegible] that crawled thick with tropical [illegible] for the [illegible] [illegible] wooden piles, so that, in [illegible] the [illegible] washed [illegible] under his dwelling and he could [illegible] living room window and haul up fish as [illegible]

Life for Napoleon St. Francis Meloch was sweet and uncomplicated. Nature [illegible] his simple needs and he [illegible] over the [illegible] distances with sun and salt [illegible] his leathery cheeks. No man [illegible]

TWO THINGS TO LOOK FOR ON A WHISKEY LABEL

1. The type of whiskey . . . blend or straight
2. The "proof" . . .

These statements on the label are dependable guides to the kind of whiskey you want.

• • •

If you want "all whiskey and all one kind of whiskey" just look for the words "straight whiskey" on the label. And, if you want a full measure of whiskey strength, look for the words, "100 proof."

You get all of that when you ask for Old Mr. Boston 100 Proof Straight Whiskey . . . and something more for your money. The extra proof gives you an extra measure of flowing smoothness, an extra richness of gusty whiskey flavor. That means you need less whiskey in every highball . . . you get more highballs from every bottle. Buy a bottle of Old Mr. Boston 100 Proof Straight Whiskey tonight and taste how much solid satisfaction you can buy for a very modest price.

HANEY ANSWERS QUERIES

Four Things Wrong
WITH PRESENT U. S.
Financial System

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Feb. 19—An accumulation of questions in my mail invites some broad discussions.

(1)—Chicago asks: "Is not something wrong with our financial system, since it collapses every once in a while?"

Ans.—There may be; but if so, it is not proved by the occasional collapses you mention. The system might be perfect, and still there might be collapses caused by the way we misuse the system.

I do not believe that there is or can be any foolproof social system.

Until all fools are gone, therefore, we may expect trouble in society—under any system.

Ignorance, greed, [illegible] and politics mixed with business—these are the things that cause collapses.

* * *

(2)—"If panics are not necessary, can any system be established which will obviate them?"

Ans.—I do not consider "panics" to be necessary, though I do think that more or less regular ups and downs in business activity are probable. Such "cycles" could be anticipated and be provided for.

Today, we badly need to be reminded again that "panics" always follow booms. This is so universally true that it is not far wrong to say that booms are the cause of panics.

Back of booms, however, lies inflation of credit. People get optimistic about being able to pay for things. They borrow and spend, thus getting into debt. Eventually they find they can't pay, and some settlement has to be worked out in a "depression."

The chief thing, therefore, is to prevent expansion of credit for unproductive purposes, or for productive purposes beyond limits set by experience.

Thus, you see how bad it is to find the world today borrowing and spending for purposes that will never pay returns, and which therefore mean debt and eventual panic. Perhaps the greatest curse is the so-called "managed currency," which governments nowadays manufacture out of their debts in such a way as to allow public debt to take the place of private debt.

* * *

(3)—Atlanta asks: "Are we not facing great changes, calling for flood control, soil conservation, education, public health, etc.; and must we not therefore broaden our basis of taxation so as to rest on every citizen, even if it takes all income?"

Ans.—I suppose no one should be too sure; but I think that history suggests that no such radical and revolutionary change would be likely to succeed.

You suggest complete socialization of economic life, since all wages would be turned back to the government, which would then presumably spend all our money for us. I ask you:

First, how would you select the best men to run our lives for us? Would you want all your income turned over to such politicians as you know about?

Second, how would the politicians who get all this tax money to spend, know what is best for each and all of us?

Third, would the wisest men not refuse to try such a vain thing? Do you think that men who can't succeed in a business or profession are likely to be able to run the affairs of a nation successfully?

* * *

(4)—Oakland, Cal., asks: "Suppose that corporations paid wages in proportion to profits; would laborers not then work their hands to the quick to increase the profits and so their wages?"

Ans.—Profit sharing has been tried over and over again. Under special circumstances it has succeeded moderately in a few cases. In general, it has not been successful. The reasons are as follows:

First, no individual worker would feel that he would be working for himself. He looks around and he sees some fellow workers are lazy, or unskilled, or otherwise inefficient. Why, he asks, should he work himself to death to increase the other fellow's pay?

Second, when profits are shared, laborers come to take them for granted as a part of their wages, and thus the stimulus is often lost.

Third, the problem of what to do when profits decrease, and when they turn into losses, is a tough one.

ATTACKS
On Business
DECLINE

BREATHING SPELL HERE

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER
Copyright, 1937, by Universal Service

New York, Feb. 19—Business is momentarily enjoying a second "breathing spell."

Unlike the first "breathing spell," planned and revealed by President Roosevelt toward the end of his first administration, this breathing spell results from a decision to hold off on significant new legislative proposals until Congress has formulated its views on the chief executive's program for rejuvenating the judiciary.

There seems to be a disposition to hold off on proposed reforms relating to wages and hours, agriculture, public utilities and all important new legislation until Congress decides what to do or to refrain from doing to the Supreme Court.

Accordingly, though the mill that grinds out new laws is now temporarily in repose, the nature of the new "breathing spell" is not such as to make thoughtful financiers and business executives [illegible].

On the other hand, if the growing movement to protect the independent integrity of the Supreme Court should succeed, it will be a landmark in building up long term investment confidence.

In the discussion of the court issue, it seems to me that too little consideration has been given to the fact that in sweeping away unworkable experiments the Supreme Court paved the way for a fuller recovery.

The great need is better discussion of the economic system, so that the public may understand how it functions and may be in position better to appraise the constructive or destructive effect of miscellaneous political proposals.

From my viewpoint, the most helpful development of the last four years has been the improved relationship between raw material prices and quotations of finished products. The relative, as well as the absolute rise in farm income, created the basis for an ascending spiral.

Under our modern economic society, prosperity springs from balanced income relationships among the principal producing groups, so that they can fully employ one another by interchanging the products of their year's labor. When an equilibrium exists, goods and services can be freely circulated.

On the other hand, the creation of income disparities sets up blockades, and creates a dismal sequence of events, including disappearance of profits, wage and price cutting, and then defaults of interest and principal on fixed obligations.

If the balance is restored on a radically lower basis than when outstanding debts were incurred, the tendency is to invalidate fixed debt.

GOULD VIEWS 'HOT MONEY' CONTROL

WORKABLE PLAN DIFFICULT

By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service Financial Writer

New York, Feb. 19—In this matter of controlling the so-called "hot money" that has been flowing into this country from abroad, the Washington financial authorities have a hard nut to crack.

This is quite evident from the length of time it is taking to draft a plan. After more than three months of study, no workable plan has been arrived at.

This is not surprising, for the problem is a four-fold one, and because of these many angles it is difficult to see just how a satisfactory—air tight—solution can be developed.

Any program to control the inflow of these funds—the real worry is when the time comes for their withdrawal—must consider the effect upon such things as:

1—International trade of this country and the agreements set up with other nations, i. e., the Hull pacts.

2—The foreign markets, and the agreement this country has recently executed with France and Great Britain with its ultimate object of a world stabilization of currencies.

3—Taxation, for that is the leading suggestion at present for controlling the "hot money."

4—The American securities market, and whether any restrictions would upset the markets and thus adversely affect the upward spiral of business.

1—The fact the American dollar through the 40 per cent devaluation is undervalued in terms of other currencies. Thus foreigners by shipping gold here are able to buy American equities, i. e., stocks, real estate, etc., at the bargain counter.

2—A foreign belief also shared by Americans—that this country is headed for a big inflation, and there will naturally be a tremendous boom over the next few years in American equities.

3—The fact that business is recovering in this country, and that in addition to inflation, markets here will have to discount expanding corporation profits and general American prosperity.

4—The unsettlement in Europe, with the twin threats of economic and war crises, thus making America a safer haven for funds.

Thus it would seem that the ways to check this fund—other than a punitive tax—would be to increase the gold content of the dollar—that is lower the Treasury's purchase price for the metal from $35 and ounce, and for European action that would guarantee peace.

The first—increase in the dollar's gold content—would call for retracing some of its steps by this administration, which seems highly improbable.

The other would call for this country's intervention in European affairs, something which the American people are dead set against. So those two "solutions" seem impossible. And it is doubtful just how effective other measures would be.

PRICE TREND

Sharp Jump In Past Month

During the fall of 1928 the index of bank stock prices and the composite index of all common stock prices, both with 1926 as 100, was about the same.

The rise that took place in the boom year of 1929 carried bank stock prices to an index number exceeding 350, more than 100 points higher than the composite index.

Following the crash of 1929, bank stock prices fell more precipitately than the general market. The rise of stock prices following President Roosevelt's first inauguration in 1932 carried the composite list upward.

Bank stocks responded to this upward movement for a few months but soon slumped. Since then the composite list has been higher than the bank stocks.

The chart shows that during 1936 bank stock prices did not advance as sharply as the composite list. However, bank stock prices took a sharp jump last month.

A prime factor in the rise of bank stock prices has been the strengthening of the money markets due to the Federal Reserve Board's action in raising reserve requirements of member banks.

Rates on bankers' acceptances have been raised three successive times since last August when the Federal Reserve Board first raised reserve requirements.

United-Car Fastener

United-Car Fastener Corporation declared regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents a share on convertible preferred and 50 cents a share on common stock, both payable March 15 to stock of record March 10.

Carloadings Up For Past Week

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Association of American Railroads reported today 691,615 cars of revenue freight were loaded during the week ending last Saturday.

This was an increase of 16,502 or 2.5 percent, compared with the preceding week; an increase of 60,532, or 9.6 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 109,949, or 18.9 per cent, compared with a year ago, and an increase of 108,949, or 18.9 percent, compared with two years ago.

Wholesale Trade Value Increases

Secretary Roper said he had received a report from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce which estimated the value of wholesale trading during 1936 at $52,[illegible]

He added that the report shows that 1933 marked the low point in wholesale trade activity when business transacted was valued at only $31,417,000,000.

The secretary said the 1936 volume was an increase of 17 per cent over the 1935 figure of $44,[illegible]

FORBES ON SKILLED LABOR

Tells How to Relieve
SHORTAGE; PREPARATION
For Scarcity Urged

By B. C. FORBES

If America, running true to form, rises to new heights and breadths of prosperity following depression, one acute difficulty certain to be encountered is scarcity of men trained for jobs requiring special skill and experience.

During the last six-seven years relatively few concerns have systematically taken on youths for training. Without engaging apprentices it has been difficult enough for most organizations to provide reasonable employment for their regular working forces.

The result has been that America's crop of technical and other recruits has not been adequately cultivated.

Already not a few concerns have felt the pinch. But the shortage heretofore suffered will be as nothing contrasted with future embarrassment should the nation's onward and upward march continue vigorously.

• • •

How can individual concerns, how can different industries begin preparing now to mitigate the looming dearth of skilled workers?

One authority who has delved deeply into this whole field, Edwin Laird Cady, has furnished me with the following specific suggestions for employers and industries:

1—Start full apprenticeship courses to attract the highest grade of young men.

2—Start short apprenticeship courses to get quick supply of "specialty trained" young and older men.

3—Hook experienced employes on apprenticeship courses at proper advanced stages to finish in shortest possible time.

4—Enhance the value of outside study by setting up special training for men who take correspondence, night-school, or other self-help courses.

5—Establish yearly schedules for training apt and willing men.

6—Help public schools to set up measures of what to teach, and thus cut time from school or apprenticeship-course durations.

7—Conserve the time of skilled labor by conserving machine set-up time at the possible expense of larger parts inventories.

8—Lessen the need for highly skilled labor by redesigning parts.

9—Save the time of own skilled labor by farming more operations over to outside suppliers of materials and parts.

10—Determine all the capabilities of present skilled labor employed in the shop, by listing various skills of individuals on punched cards or other easily available records.

11—Co-operate with competitors to study the problem.

12—Set up intra-industry special trade schools in co-operation with others in the same industry.

13—Borrow men from competitors to meet rush-order jams.

14—Work with the public school systems to solve some of the basic parts of the problem.

15—Train the service men of dealers and distributors to the point where own factory service men can be turned over to production department.

* * *

A recent inspiring sight, for this writer, was an extensive floor in a Chrysler automobile plant dedicated to the practical training of students who spend part of their time acquiring "book learning" and devote the rest of their time to learning how to perform useful tasks identified with the building of automobiles. These youths earn while they learn.

Technical education work is carried on by a considerable number of other large corporations, some of them on the same basis as Chrysler, others employing full-time apprentices.

But the number of young men now under training runs far short of prospective needs.

A LOAN AT LAST!

a short storyette

Tom Jones needed a loan, needed it badly—hospital expenses, call for cash, you know.

He went to Smith.

Smith said he was sorry, but——

He went to Brown.

Brown said something about making a loan, losing a friend.

He went to Glutz.

Glutz said yes—week after next.

He went to Tom Jones, senior.

He gave him a lecture on saving his money. That's all he gave him.

He went to Johnson, to MacFadden, to Duval, to Stein, and to O'Malley.

They were his best friends—fair weather type.

Then he went to one of the Money-to-Loan companies advertising in the Boston American-Sunday Advertiser Want Ads.

He was told: "Come back this afternoon, the money will be waiting for you."

It's easy, it's convenient, it's confidential—when you make a loan in this business-like fashion. Select one of the firms advertising in today's Want Ads. A pleasant surprise awaits you when you learn how quickly a satisfactory loan can be obtained. Consult one of the Money-to-Loan firms listed below TODAY!

TEXTILES & SHOES

Increased WAGES SOUGHT By Labor

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

New England industrialists who, up to now, have read of the activities in far fields of Mr. Lewis and his "sit-downers" may soon taste the unpleasant medicine they prescribe as a cure for real or fancied labor ills.

In both shoe and textile lines the C. I. O. apparently has at least a foothold of some importance if one is to judge by demands for wage increases of 15 and 10 per cent respectively.

The sought-for increases [illegible] fantastic especially in the case of shoes [illegible] the well-known "asking price" of the shrewd trader. [illegible] the important thing [illegible] C. I. O. has entered the New England industrial picture. In the southern section the reception to efforts of organizers is said to have been downright [illegible]. And north of Boston the memory of strikes that failed despite glowing promises lingers on. For are there not many formerly prosperous mill and shoe centers that have failed to recoup the glory of days past that vanished with the appearance of "labor agitators"?

* * *

January operating reports of American railroads now coming to hand do not show the loss in revenues the pessimists predicted following the loss of freight surcharges. In fact, increases are the mode if the statements seen to date are a reliable reflection of conditions in the industry. In fact, a stronger stand is possible. One might say that lowered rates have definitely resulted in freight traffic gains just as reduced fares stimulated passenger travel beyond the hopes of the most optimistic observer. American railroads still have a future in our opinion. And it is a promising one.

Notebook: The proposed refinancing by New York Central is attracting a great deal of attention . . . The 6 per cent convertibles that will be called had been looked upon as somewhat of an "honor" loan . . . Friends of the road subscribed to it when money was hard to get . . . And received an attractive conversion offer plus a nice rate of interest . . . A great deal of interest is noted in State St. circles in regard to new money bond and stock issues . . . Incidentally Curtis Wright is expected to put the new money it obtained last summer to work this year . . . So far it has only been used in research work.

* * *

The stock market woke up all of a sudden this morning. Industrial favorites of past sessions acted as though they had simply been resting. Coppers naturally took heart as the price of the metal worked higher to the accompaniment of much talk of armament needs. But the rails failed to make a really prominent place for themselves on the tape and [illegible] professionals and chartists will not enter the buying side very enthusiastically until they do. This will tend to restrict volume as well as bring a wavering appearance to prices. For such activities as these two groups undertake will be on a trading basis only.

* * *

Ticker Ticks: Some days ago we noted unfilled orders of Worthington Pump stood around $15,000,000 . . . This was an error for which the writer apologizes . . . The figure represents an estimate of last year's sales . . . Unfilled orders now on the company's books are said to be in the vicinity of $5,000,000 . . . Studebaker could earn between 50 and 60 cents per share in the first quarter, according to advices we receive from New York . . . Last year the company probably earned about one dollar a share . . . United States and Foreign Securities is said to have an asset value just about twice current selling price of the stock.

STOCKS UP

Steel SHARES Feature

New York, Feb. 19—Breaking through 110 to a new recovery top, U. S. Steel led a selective forward push in today's stock market that put favored issues up 1 to 3 points.

Coppers, rubbers, rails and specialties were in the forefront.

Best prices were established in the first hour. Profit selling cut down gains in many instances and there was an assortment of losers in evidence near the fourth hour.

Bonds improved, but grains and cotton were uneven.

Besides "big steel" shares well up in front during the greater part of the proceedings, many at 6-year peaks, included Bethlehem, Crucible, National Steel, Gulf States Steel, Republic, Youngstown Sheet & Tube, Anaconda, Kennecott, St. Joseph Lead, Cerro de Pasco, International Nickel, American Smelting, U. S. Smelting, U. S. Rubber, Goodrich, N. Y. Central, Delaware & Hudson, Baltimore & Ohio, Northern Pacific, Schenley, Electric Boat, Celanese and American Zinc.

Inclined to give ground most of the time were Western Union, Montgomery Ward, Deere, American Can, Westinghouse, du Pont, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville and General Motors. Unchanged to a bit ahead were Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, American Telephone, North American, General Electric and Standard Oil of N. J.

Carriers enjoyed an upward flurry following publication of last week's freight loadings total, disclosing a more than seasonal advance.

Revival of some of the old-time "war babies" among the steels, coppers and rubbers helped to cheer boardroom contingents.

With export copper and other metals soaring to new heights for the past several years, brokers reported speculative participation in commodity stocks has recently attained large proportions.

Brokerage quarters were impressed with the stock end survey of Dun & Bradstreet which noted a brisk advance in virtually all branches of trade.

Retail distribution, it was said, displayed a particularly expansive trend. Increases over the preceding week were estimated at from 6 to 10 per cent and 12 to 20 per cent over the same period last year.

Sterling, at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions was up 1-16 of a cent at $4.89½, and the French franc was unchanged at 4.66¼ cents.

Markets to Close

All securities and commodities markets throughout the United States will remain closed Monday, Washington's Birthday, with the exception of various livestock markets. European and Canadian markets will be open as usual.

Gasoline Stocks Sharply Higher In Week

Indicating possibly the first real slump in demand this season, gasoline stocks expanded 3,000,000 barrels in the week ended February 13. This marked one of the largest additions on record. Coincidentally, production of crude oil touched a new all-time peak while refinery operations were boosted moderately.

Finished and unfinished motor fuel inventories total 72,685,000 barrels on February 13, according to the American Petroleum Institute, within a few hundred thousand of the all-time record in early April, 1936 and slightly more than 6,000,000 barrels over a year ago.

While the 3,000,000-barrel gain represents only one week's figures, and should not be taken as a barometer of future trend, it is significant that further material additions to stocks may prove burdensome from a price standpoint when the heavy motoring season is entered.

Farm Price Outlook Termed Favorable

Generally good demand for farm products in 1937 is foreseen by Bureau of Agricultural Economics, due to generally increasing purchasing power and business improvement. The outlook is particularly bright, it says, since settlement of recent labor difficulties in January and disappearance of floods.

It foresees no material change in foreign demand the next few months and says world wheat prices are likely to remain steady until southern hemisphere shipments begin to taper off.

Massachusetts Opposes Roosevelt Proposal

THE Massachusetts Legislature, adopting Speaker Horace T. Cahill's resolution by emphatic majorities in both the House and Senate, has placed this State officially in opposition to President Roosevelt's proposal to pack the Supreme Court.

The action is actually a request to Massachusetts' two Senators and fifteen Congressmen to vote as statesmen and not as politicians on this issue that transcends party lines and goes to the very fundamentals of American freedom and liberty.

By no means does the substantial votes in both the House and Senate associate Massachusetts with those individuals and organizations that consistently oppose the President.

Rather, the vote endorses the stand of such eminent Democrats as Senator Glass of Virginia, Senator George of Georgia, Senator Van Nuys of Indiana and Senator Burke of Nebraska, who are leading the fight to keep the Supreme Court a free and independent body.

None of these men, outstanding for years in the leadership of their party, regards the recent election as a mandate from the people to follow the President blindly into what amounts to turning the court into a rubber stamp for the Executive will.

Instead, they know that the question of justices' ages, number and competence was carefully avoided by Mr. Roosevelt in his every speech throughout the campaign and that at no time were the people called upon to consider it.

The views of these and other Democrat Party stalwarts that the Massachusetts Legislature now officially supports is clearly not so much anti-Roosevelt as pro-American.

Let's Help Our Own People

DR. CLAUDIUS T. MURCHISON, Cotton Textile Institute president, home from Japan, believes it will be unnecessary for Congress to curb the amount of cotton cloth that Japan is selling in the United States.

He praises the recent voluntary agreement, whereby Japan restricts herself to exporting to America 155,000,000 square yards of cotton cloth this year and 100,000,000 next year.

Dr. Murchison's reasoning, though undoubtedly sincere, is hard to follow, especially in the light of what has happened and what we are told will happen.

Last year Japan sold in the United States 75,000,000 square yards of cotton cloth. The year before she sold 35,000,000. So, under the agreement "which makes Congressional curbs unnecessary," Japan actually plans to sell America ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY MILLION more yards than she sold in 1935.

Despite Dr. Murchison's belief, action by Congress in the form of ADEQUATE TARIFFS would seem absolutely necessary.

Nine million Americans are jobless, thousands of them cotton workers. They want work and manufacturers want to give it to them.

Consequently, how can there ever be any excuse for permitting Japan to INCREASE her cotton exports to the United States by nearly THREE HUNDRED AND FIFTY per cent in two years?

When all our own textile workers are employed at good wages, it will be time to think about Japan's welfare.

An Indication of Recovery

THAT New England is one of the most fertile fields for insurance is revealed in the report of George Willard Smith, president of the New England Life Insurance Company.

President Smith points out that more new insurance was sold by his company during 1936 than in any other year of the company's 104 years of history.

The disclosures of Mr. Smith are among the healthy signs prevailing over New England today.

Priest Warns New Bedford

THE Rev. Francis E. Low, S. J., professor of philosophy at Boston College, is no alarmist. Rather, Father Low is a calm, conservative citizen, seldom given to superlatives unless circumstances warrant superlatives.

That makes his views on Communism important, especially those he expressed this week before the New Bedford Knights of Columbus.

Said Father Low:

"The Communist revolution is not a threat in the United States. IT IS A FACT—far reaching in its scope, carefully planned and already too successful.

"How far it will go depends on the intelligence and the courage of those who wish to end it before it is too late."

France lulled herself into a false sense of security, we know, and awoke when it was too late. Spain is learning—too late. And now America, will she also learn?

It all depends, as Father Low says, on US. Lacking intelligence to see and courage to fight, we too can lull ourselves to sleep. That is all Communists want.

The future is ours or Stalin's. It can't belong to both.

Harvard Leads the Way

PROFESSOR GEORGE B. WESTON lectured Wednesday at Harvard and the world was his classroom.

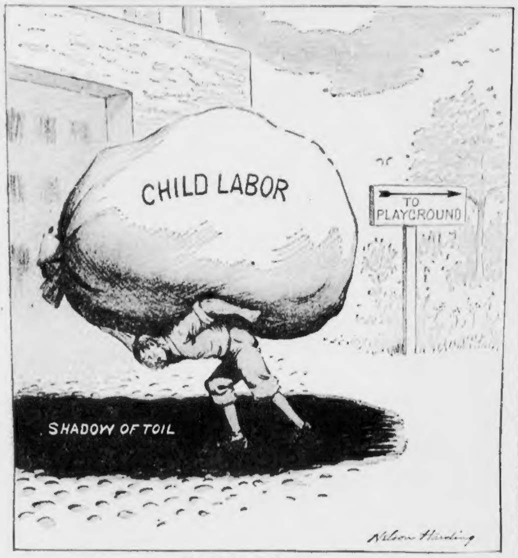
His talk, broadcast by short wave radio, was the beginning of an experiment in education, an attempt to extend to thousands of people cultural opportunities hitherto restricted to those attending the university.

How many will tune in on these lectures cannot now be estimated, but it seems safe to say thousands. And, listening, these thousands will be encouraged to read, study and become better, happier individuals.

Thus the radio, now devoted principally to entertainment, much of it useless, can become the high school and the university for millions of people.

Harvard apparently recognizes this and leads us into a new intellectual era.

Darkened Childhood



By Nelson Harding

Lift this heavy, cruel burden
From the backs of little children.
Lift the load that casts its blighting
Shadow upon years of childhood.

And restore them to the schoolroom,
To the light and air of playgrounds.
Grant them health and education,
Prove this an enlightened nation.

By Edwin C. Hill

One of the few men who ever put John L. Sullivan on the floor for the count of ten has just celebrated his 80th birthday in his home, Barley Thorpe, Oakham, Rutlandshire, England—one of the few survivors of the old-time British aristocracy. He is Lord Lonsdale, hale and hearty at fourscore, and with such memories as few living men can boast.

Edwin C. Hill

It was in 1878, by his own account of the historic bout, that Hugh Lowther, future Lord Lonsdale, donned the gloves with the great John L., at that time regarded as invincible, the superman of the ring. Lonsdale, then 22, was celebrated as an expert boxer, with victories over many English professionals. A bout was arranged and very privately held, and the result, after five rounds, was the referee counting ten over the recumbent and senseless figure of the Boston Boy.

I don't know if the knockout is preserved in the records of Fistiana, but it's Lord Lonsdale's story and he sticks to it.

A remarkable old boy with an almost unbelievably colorful career. Mr. H. W. Seaman, writing in the Sunday Chronicle of London, tells of the striking impression the octogenarian made as he forged through a London street crowd:

"We were crowded tightly together, with necks craned waiting to see a royal procession. But suddenly the ranks parted like a Red Sea miracle and a top-hatted man, taller than most of us, despite his slight stoop, came steadily through.

"One of the few frock coats left in London, worn by one of the very few men who could carry it with dignity, appeared. In the button-hole was a white carnation; in his right hand, a walking stick, and in his mouth, a nine-inch cigar. No other man on earth could have borne that cigar intact through such a crowd.

"All knew that he was Lord Lonsdale, on his way to his home in Carlton House Terrace. 'Doesn't he carry his years well?' said a woman near me. 'He must be nearly 80.'"

A LIVELY CAREER

An adventurer from boyhood, this Grand Old Man, representative of an ancient tradition, he offers example and inspiration to the young of today. Circuses, prize fights, racing, hunting, wandering in strange lands and farming his native acres—these have been his chief interests.

No career has been more crammed with action. When he was 17 years old, just out of Eton, he ran away from home to join a circus as an acrobat. His skill in the Cumberland style of wrestling earned the respect of the gang of roughnecks, white and colored, honest and otherwise, who travelled with the big tent.

The next his parents heard of him was from Denver, Colorado, where he was prospecting for gold. In Colorado in the "seventies," he drove cattle for five dollars a day.

He was a cowboy at Cheyenne, Wyom., 60 years before cowboys took to crooning. He fought Indians in the days of tomahawks, feathers and firewater. Only two men in fight history ever knocked the great John L. Sullivan off his feet before drink and the devil got him down. One was a little Englishman named Charlie Mitchell. The other was a big Englishman named the Hon. Hugh Lowther.

Sullivan used to hang over the ropes and bellow, "My name is John L. Sullivan. I come from South Boston and I can lick any single man alive!" The future Lord Lonsdale knocked him out in five rounds in 1879, when Sullivan was at the height of his fame. He was one of the first men to make the perilous way over the Klondike Trail into the Yukon, but not after gold, for nobody then dreamed that any gold was there.

FRIEND OF KINGS

By that time he had succeeded his brother in the earldom, become the squire of 175,000 acres, idol of a sporting countryside, friend of kings, prodigal lover of animals and the upholder of chivalrous tradition. Colonel of the Westmoreland and Cumberland Yeomanry, he went to the South African war as Assistant Adjutant-General.

In the Great War he went to France to organize the work of caring for army horses. Fight fans know him as the founder and donor of the Lonsdale Belt, and racing men as one of the greatest supporters of the turf, although he won only one classic, the 1922 St. Leger.

There was widespread regret a little more than a year ago when he closed Lowther Castle, moved to Rutlandshire, and announced that he would give up racing. But at 80 he represents one of the finest examples of the landed aristocracy, and is the friend of the modern democratic crowd—which parts for him.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Many people have the erroneous idea that the United States is the only nation in which the highest court has authority to declare a legislative act unconstitutional. According to a table prepared by the United States Constitutional Sesqui-Centennial Commission there are 14 OTHER COUNTRIES IN WHICH THE HIGHEST COURT HAS POWER COMPARABLE TO THAT OF OUR SUPREME COURT TO DETERMINE THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF LAWS. There are 17 others in which the court has limited power to pass on the constitutionality of legislative acts. There are 21 in which the courts cannot set aside a law as unconstitutional.

It has been a long time since any move in Washington aroused as much public interest as President Roosevelt's request for authority to pack the Supreme Court. An increase of between 3000 and 4000 messages every 24 hours last week was reported by one telegraph company. One Senator received 6000 communications. The only way Senators and Representatives can know how the folks back home feel about the President's proposal is for the people to speak up and express themselves.

Some of the President's supporters oppose submission of a Constitutional amendment to enlarge the powers of the Federal Government because they say 13 states could block ratification of such an amendment. That is a fact. But it is what the Constitution itself provides. And the requirement that Constitutional amendments must be ratified by three-fourths of the states is a wise provision.

The purpose is to insure that any change made will have the backing of such a large part of the nation it will be accepted by an overwhelming majority of the people. Even ratification of an amendment by three-fourths of the states does not always guarantee support of public opinion as we found in the case of the prohibition amendment.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Feb. 19—Thoughts while strolling: They are calling the globe-trotting newspaper gal Dorothy Kilgallen another Dorothey Parker. Harry Burton and Ray Bolger could pass for twins in a fog. Add up a flounce, a ruffle and a curtsey and you have Miriam Hopkins.

Big pout in the editorial shops: Between Harold Ross of the New Yorker and Henry Luce of Time. How to make a columnist blush—read his first column at a party. What's become of the Duke of Manchester? Memo to Bob Burns: Fewer chestnuts, please. Radio's No. 1 in-and-outer—A. Woollcott.

Rhymes: None leaps so lightly over a chair as dancing, prancing Fred Astaire. And: Wherever there's din you'll find Erskine Gwynne. Arthur Hopkins with sideburns would be a perfect ringer for John Bull. Crack sports page cartooning: That of Burris Jenkins, Jr.

Movie memory: Virginia Valli and Pat O'Malley. And how many remember the school slate bound in red felt and dangling a smelly sponge on a string? The gentleman who hands out the auto licenses and who is touted for mayor: Commissioner Harnett.

Picturesque old-timer: Dex Fellowes of the circus. Never see a meerschaum pipe with a chamois covering any more. Nobody tops Floyd Gibbons in packing excitement into his voice. Nothing makes a fellow so self conscious along the street as soft, mocking laughter behind.

True to beginner's luck form: Gene Tunney played in his first poker game recently after the game was patiently explained to him in detail. He was the only winner. And Herbert Bayard Swope, no less, was one of the players, too.

I know a man who escaped decapitation by an eyelash in a sudden drop of an elevator into whose shaft he was peering. He went home limp and adrip with a perspiration so offensive he had to burn every article of clothing, including his shoes. It recalls an article Rufus Steele once wrote on an odd psychological perfume generated by fear in the diamond back rattler.

Ordinarily the aroma from the diamond back is similar to sweet apples, pleasantly aromatic. But aroused by the fright of an approaching enemy, it fills the air for a mile around with an unbearable stench.

Then, that relative—a cousin as I recall—of Warwick Deeping, the author, who awoke one night in the room of an isolated inn along a bleak stretch of the Cornish coast. He lit a candle and standing over him was a wild-eyed maniac with an upraised broad axe. A sudden scream caused the mad-man to turn and run. The victim at his shaving mirror next day discovered a faint blotch on his neck.

Under inspection it had the outline of an upraised axe in blood red and remained a permanent token of his terrorizing experience.

Also there is the odd impress so often expressed in mass thought in a given area. A returning visitor from London tells of the blank despair that settled on London the night of the King's take-off. In thousands of restaurants food was ordered and untouched. One play sold but 37 admissions to foreigners. Strangest of all, patients in hospitals whose conditions did not permit them to know their sovereign was thinking of quitting his throne in almost every instance, grew more feverish and restless during the night.

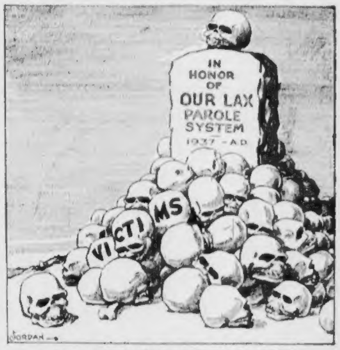
Similarly there was much unrest in hospitals everywhere during the Ohio valley floods.

New York has had three sets of caterers who ran successfully in double harness. The first were John and Cristo who ruled over the dining at old Reisenweber's in Columbus Circle and afterward at various popular haunts. Later, they split and John became the maitre d'hotel of a Hollywood restaurant.

The more recent team-up consists of Jack and Charlie who conduct the widely three-sheeted "No. 21."

And more successful still were Gene and Ernest who presided over the most exclusive restaurant perhaps of all—The Colony—until Ernest's recent passing.

A Parole "Monument"



IN HONOR OF OUR LAX PAROLE SYSTEM 1937-AD
VICTIMS
JORDAN

Representative Sawyer Demands Action

The cartoon, ably drawn, makes you think, and that is its purpose. It also serves to emphasize the increasing laxity in the enforcement of parole laws, not only in Massachusetts but throughout the nation.

The skulls you see, piled one on the other, are the victims of criminals jailed by courts only to be released by politicians and returned to careers of crime.

The cartoon will be of especial interest to Representative Roland D. Sawyer, now leading the fight in the Massachusetts Legislature for stricter parole legislation and going so far as to demand suspension of all parole laws until July 1, 1940.

Says Representative Sawyer:

"The underworld feels that the present parole system is easy, a sort of joke. Gangsters and their families frequently attempt to buy the freedom of friends and boldly try to give money to politicians.

"Sometimes the politicians are able to get their friends out of prison and sometimes they are not. Anyway, it is certainly time we declared a closed season on the loosing of prisons for at least a two-year period."

The Legislature, wasting time on far less important measures, might well devote weeks to the parole situation. Representative Sawyer's recommendations may not be the solution, but at least he has the courage to face the problem and to challenge his fellow law-makers to face it also. And what he tells us is too often true.

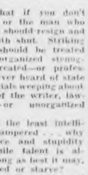
As J. Edgar Hoover, chief G-Man says, "there is but one reason why thousands upon thousands of men who have repeatedly committed crimes are set free to commit other and usually more dangerous crimes against the law.

"THIS IS THE FAILURE OF PUBLIC OFFICIALS FAITHFULLY TO CARRY OUT THEIR PUBLIC TRUST."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Elizabeth Brown, aged 24, attorney-at-law of Rome, Georgia, speaking. Asking that oldest of human questions—"Are we our brothers' keeper?" And answering it with an indignant negative.



Elsie Robinson

"Why," demands Elizabeth, "should there be all this Federal agitation about working men and their rights. If a man has what it takes to run a factory, hasn't he the right to run it as he sees fit?

"Since the place is his, shouldn't he be allowed to pay any price he desires, provided he can get away with it? Why should the government spend time and money guarding the laboring man's working hours and minimum wage?

"I believe that if you don't like your job, or the man who is over you, you should resign and keep your mouth shut. Striking mill workers should be treated exactly as unorganized stenographers are treated—or professionals. Who ever heard of state or Federal officials weeping about the condition of the writer, lawyer, doctor—or unorganized clerks?

"Why should the least intelligent class be pampered . . . why should ignorance and stupidity be coddled—while talent is allowed to get along as best it may, either to succeed or starve?

"If a man has the right stuff in him, he'll get through somehow without any aid. I believe you should get only what you deserve and can personally attain—and you've no right to expect those who are more powerful to get it for you.

"ELIZABETH BROWN."

I don't know you, Elizabeth—have never been in Rome, Georgia—have no acquaintance with the conditions which may have shaped your opinion. But out of many facts which might be used to refute your protest, I can name just two which you will have to realize if you hope to get anywhere with your fellow man.

NOT ALL ALIKE

The first is this—we're not always what we want to be. It is sheer poppycock to say that human beings are born "free and equal" even in America. Many, and their parents before them, were born handicapped by conditions beyond their control . . . limited in both brain and body by the stupidity and shameful selfishness of society at large. Just as many were born unfairly privileged and powerful. So it's plainly childish to say that "If we have the right stuff in us we'll come through without aid."

Such being the case, we have a system in which the few privileged live with, and on the labors of, the many unprivileged. These unprivileged ones are not only miserable in themselves, but they are, inevitably, a menace to everyone else. No hog cholera or fruit scab ever constituted as virulent a peril as the wretchedness of undernourished, uneducated, illy paid and overworked human beings.

Governor Landon recognized this when he recently advocated laws which would outlaw the products of child labor . . . this virtually "quarantining" progressive States against the States which refused to see the danger and disgrace of the child labor system.

So what? Human selfishness and stupidity being what they are, what should enlightened citizens do? Allow entrenched greed to run amuck, regardless of the common good? Or fortify themselves against it?

You believe in insurance, don't you—accident and life insurance? Of course you do. Then why do you not subscribe to the wider expression of that principle in SOCIAL INSURANCE? Can you not see that you MUST be your weaker brother's keeper, unless you are willing to have your life wrecked by his incompetence and unfair exploitation?

A GENERAL MENACE

Do you not see that a slave-driving employer is as much a menace to the commonwealth as any common thief or thug—even if he "can't get by with it" by such shrewd legal manipulation as the criminal employs?

As for the "poor, helpless professional"—I have yet to see one of them, including my own clan, who didn't make up for his "starving years" when he once got going. A bar association can be quite as forceful in protecting its members' "minimum wage" as any plumber's union.

Come out of it, child. These are no longer cave days. Men see, today, beyond the shadow of their own hearth fire. Some day we will see still further, strike still deeper, and eliminate the causes which make an unfair, unbalanced society, in which babies toil in fields and factories, helpless old people starve, and thousands of mothers die annually untended in travail.

BUT UNTIL WE DO, WE ARE OUR BROTHERS' KEEPERS . . . AND GOD HELP OUR STUPID SKULLS AND CALLOUS HEARTS UNLESS WE ARE!

The Marry-Go-Round -:- By Helen Rowland

"The only good Indian is a dead Indian", and the only perfect husband is the one a woman sees in her dreams—the lover who died or passed out of her life, long, long ago, before he could disillusion her.

No matter how happy she may be with the man she married, there are moments when the average wife is tempted to reach back into the secret recesses of her memory and bring forth the glorified picture of "the man she didn't marry."

Of course, this glamour with which she has surrounded him would probably vanish if she could see him as he is today. It is something of a strain upon the imagination to create a radiance of romance around a man who is getting stout or a little bald.

But, if she has never seen him since that unforgettable night of parting, when tears and the moon were doing tricks with her eyes, she has no way of knowing how the years have treated him. Whether he has developed into the kind of man who regards a chicken dinner on Sunday as a moral principle and breakfast as a sacred rite; or whether a morning shower and a dose of bromide constitute his whole religion.

She doesn't know whether her Greek god still wears that glittering, kissable smile or has assumed that "Please-don't-talk-to-the-motorman" expression so constantly around the house that his wife feels that she should raise her hand before she speaks.

There is no way for her to tell whether he came through the prohibition era a whooping wet or reformed dry, whether he likes girl-shows and detective stories, or goes in for chamber music and the classics; whether he has grown a small-town outlook or has acquired a metropolitan sophistication and a high polish.

All that she knows is what her memory, magnified several times, tells her, that he had misty-blue eyes, the figure of a racing-crew man, the hair of a movie actor and the charm of the Duke of Windsor.

Oh, yes, the only "perfect husband" is the one she never GOT! How fortunate that she didn't! How lucky that she fell in love and married just a nice, wholesome, gangling youth, with a pleasant grin, a few fine ideals and a good job!
